

REFEEET FOR 65

CUMBERLAND HIGH SCHOOL
CUMBERLAND, RHODE ISLAND

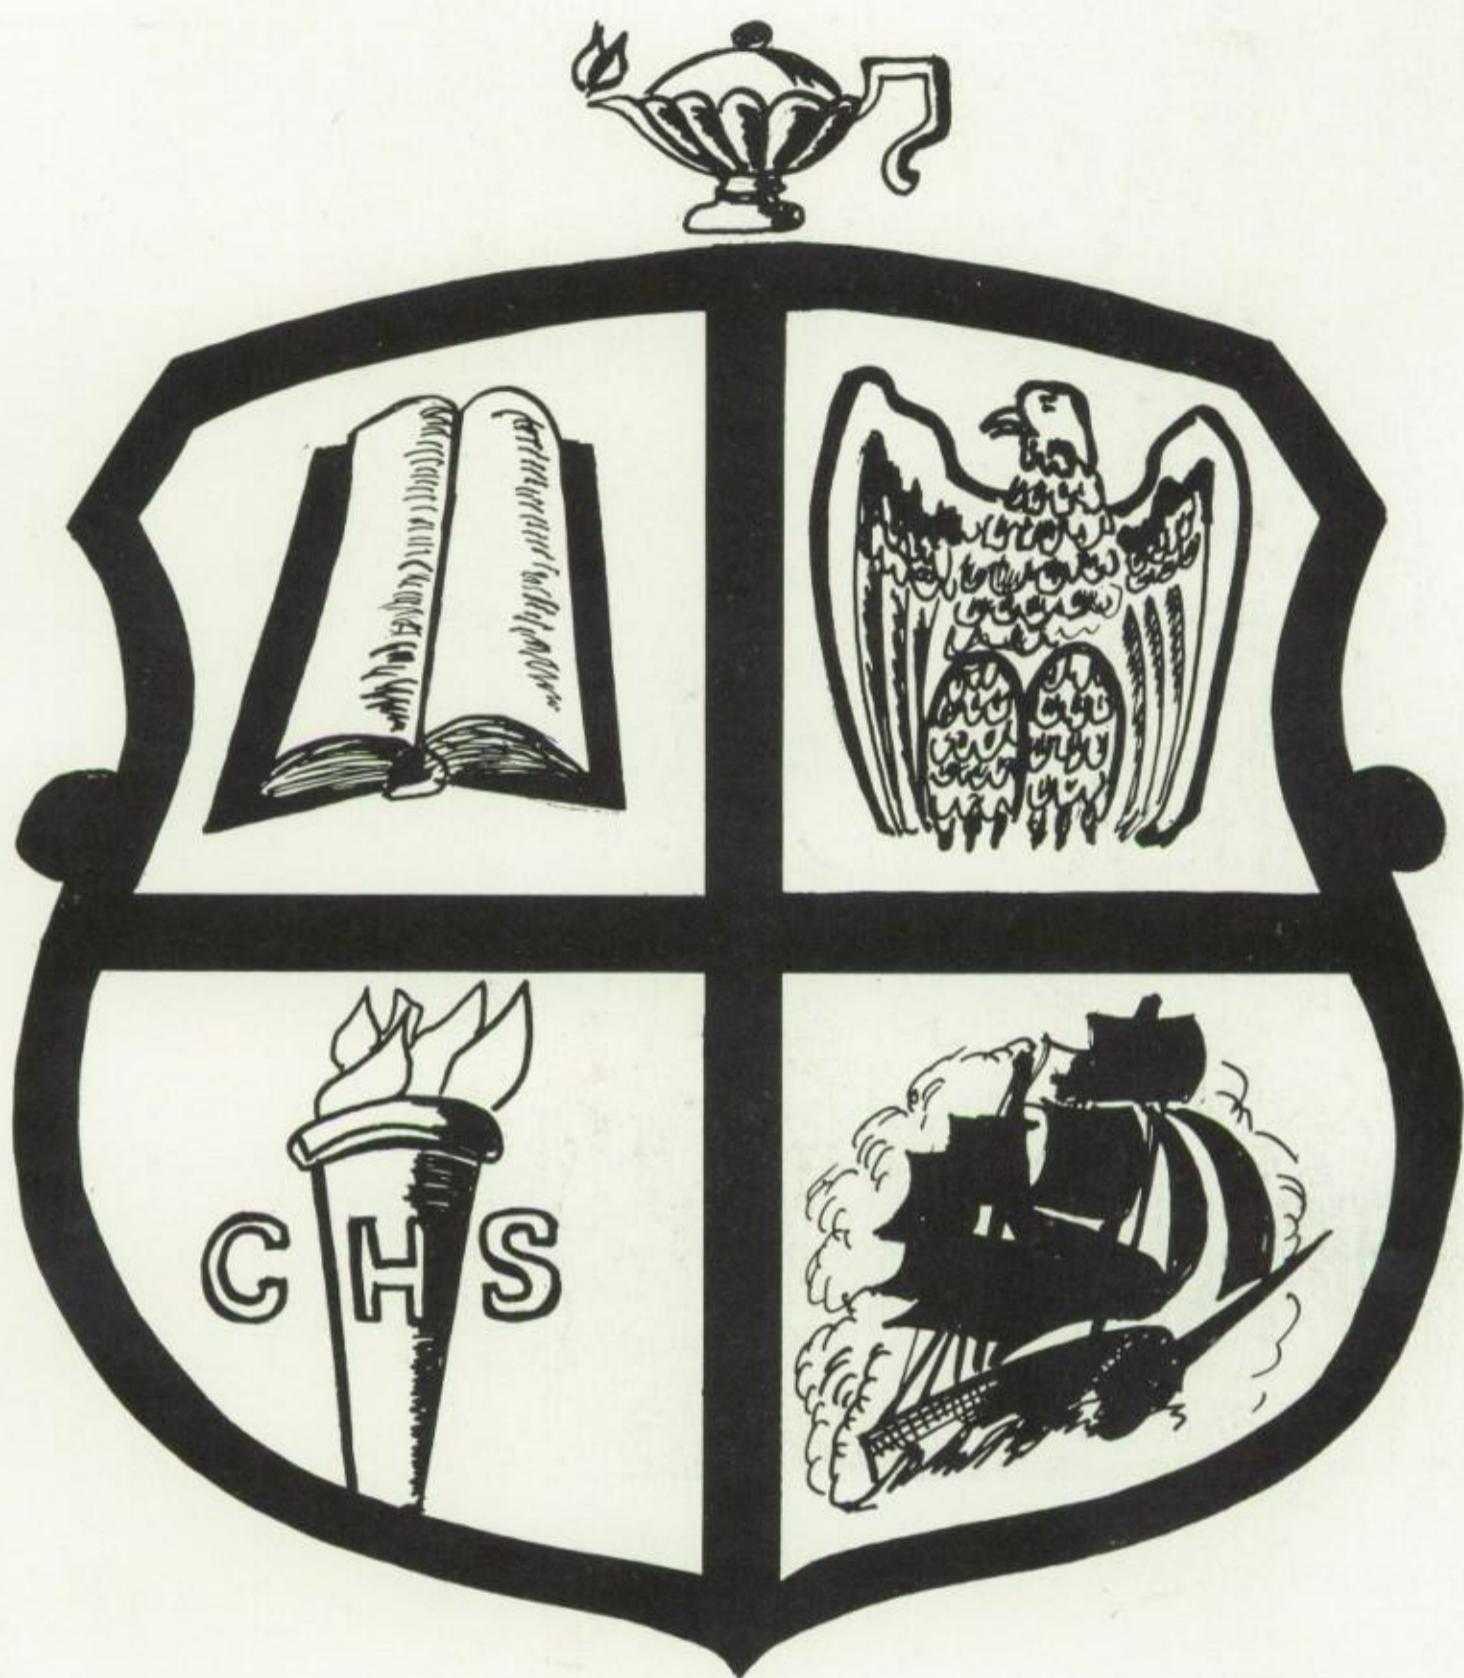

Volume XXVII

PUBLISHED BY THE SENIOR CLASS

DEDICATION

It is with a conscious effort to produce excellence that Mr. William Connor has, each year since 1960, undertaken the task of advising senior classes in the compiling of an informative, comprehensive yearbook. His successful attempts have produced many award-winning REFLECTORS. A member of the English department, Mr. Connor is both qualified and eager to help us surmount the many difficulties encountered in publishing a yearbook. In appreciation for his long hours of labor on our behalf, we, the Class of 1965, dedicate to Mr. Connor our edition of the REFLECTOR.

FOREWORD

As the gold circle of our class ring binds the toil and the recreation, the joy and the sadness, the glory of victory and the agony of defeat which we have experienced as students at Cumberland High School, so does this REFLECTOR bind the record of our youth. The following pages shall forever remind us of the four years we have spent at Cumberland High.

SCHOOL LIFE

From the arrival of the first bus in the morning until the departure of the last at night, the entire school hums with activity. Classmates socialize in the cafeteria until eight o'clock, when the school day officially begins. Classroom routine is varied—often with films, experiments, and debates. Artistic students beautify the school with eye-catching murals in the foyer. Clubs meet after two o'clock and plan field trips or social functions. Busy athletes practice in the gym. Crowded late buses make their last rounds as another day ends.

STUDENTS enjoy the shade furnished by the portico of the modern new wing.

Additional rooms make possible smaller and more comprehensive classes.

Heard from hamsters' cages to classrooms in new wing,

SENIOR COUNCIL PRESIDENT Warren Procter plays the Star Spangled Banner during morning exercises.

GOOD-NATURED faculty member, Mr. Andrew Tucker, smiles brightly at passing REFLECTOR photographer.

"OH, so you didn't do your homework, huh?" Miss Langhorn threateningly aims her .45 at her freshman English class.

"NOT SO FAST!" Donna Dziedzic's ferocious pet hamster wards off all approaching dangers, as he pulls her along.

morning exercises begin the day on a serious note

Seniors imitate the antics of "camera-shy" underclassmen.

Students of C.H.S. rise with the sun to begin a busy day. Numerous school buses filled with friends and classmates transport the great majority from their homes to our "school on the hill." The official school day begins with the morning program—a moment of silent prayer, the Pledge of Allegiance and National Anthem, and a thought for the day. Senior Council members have the privilege of leading the entire faculty and student body in these daily exercises.

The ringing of the bell sends students hurrying through the various corridors to their first period classes. The three-minute interval between classes is scarcely sufficient for students to travel the width of the school now that the new wing, which is approximately one-third the size of the original building, is completed. In addition to providing eleven extra classrooms, the new wing also contains a modern, fully-equipped science lecture hall and an enlarged nurse's office. Use of the new wing has alleviated crowded classrooms and provided for the expansion of department offices. Our up-to-date library, employing the abundant space made available, is now able to display the hundreds of new books received annually.

Students participate in choosing a homecoming queen,

School days are more than work and study. Pep rallies, a welcomed treat, are frequently held during the football season. No greater spirit can be found than that displayed by Cumberland students. The gym, indeed the whole school, resounds with the applause and cheers received by Clipper gridders. All anxiously await the moment when the recipient of the John F. Kennedy medal will be announced and his outstanding performance in the previous week's game recognized. Principal Robert G. Condon presents this award to the deserving player. Speeches by the coaches, class competition cheers, and performance by our excellent cheerleaders complete the program.

On October 10 the mud of the gridiron was transformed into the marble of a palace. Homecoming day had arrived and coronation ceremonies were held during half-time. The parade of candidates marched across the field, revealing to C.H.S. fans regally-robed Queen Lucille Raiche, her maid of honor, Elaine Titmas, her crown bearer, Ruth Jackson, and her entire court. Senior class president, Raymond LeVasseur, placed a crown of red roses on the queen's head and presented her with a bouquet of long-stem roses. The dream-come-true day ended with a dance in the gym to honor the queen and her court.

ECHOING SHOUTS from the varsity cheerleaders stimulate the crowd of fans to support their team.

IN HER EASTER BONNET, Linda Read exhibits the poise and grace which every model should possess.

PRETTY AS A PICTURE, Janice Palin models the ensemble she selected for the fashion show sponsored by the Outlet Company.

ARRANGING A DISPLAY of the various patterns of American and English chinaware from Tilden and Thurber are Diane Curodeau, Anne Miller, and Theresa Chapron.

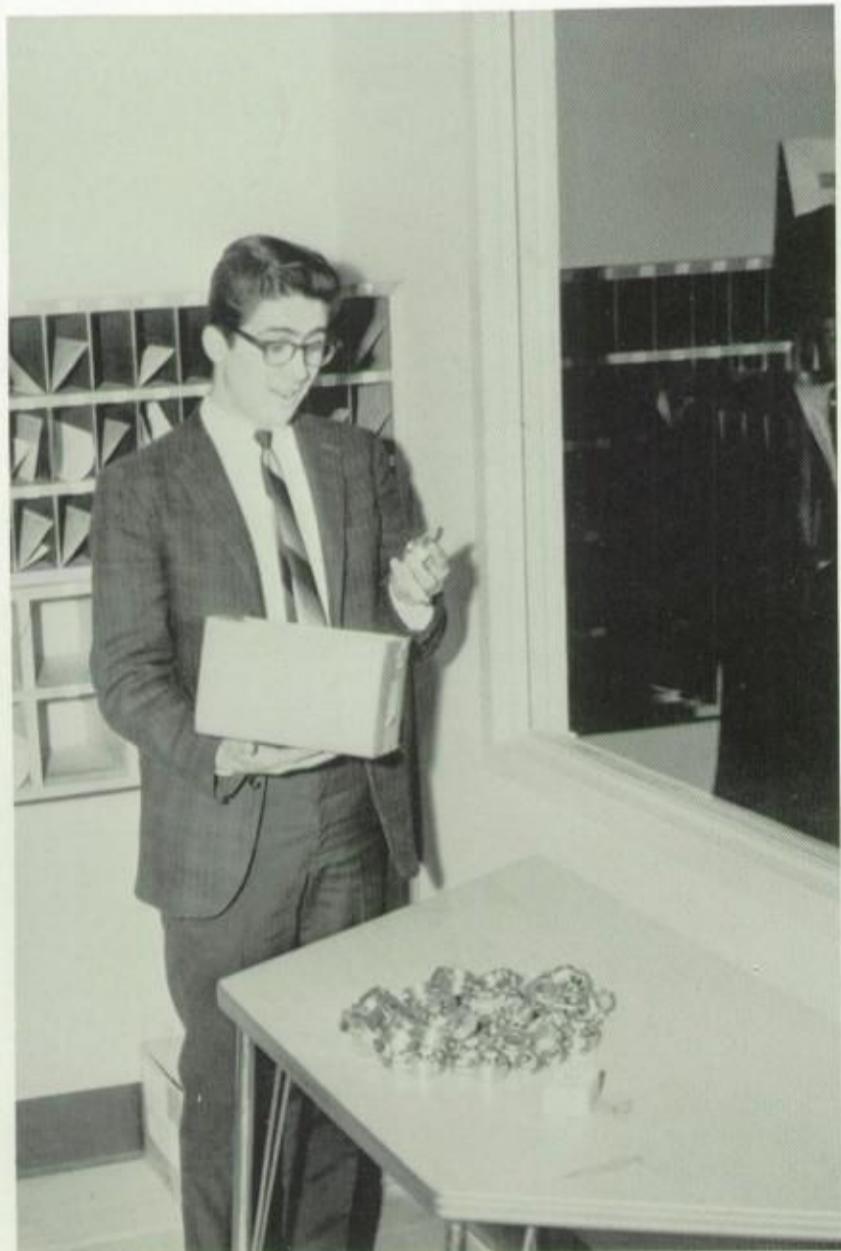

PAPERBACK BOOK STORE is operated by the REFLECTOR staff in order to raise funds for the yearbook. Reviewing available selections are Kathy Brown, Janice Wnek, Linda Read, David Hamanne, David King, Mary Barbara Orzechowski, and Pauline Nikodem.

Paperbacks cover every topic except trials of school

"LOCKED LOCKS EVERYWHERE, no combination'll fit.
Locked locks everywhere, where's my detective's kit?"
queries Albert Antonio.

NOBODY KNOWS YOU when you're down and out! Walter Reis gathers his scattered books as preoccupied classmates walk on by.

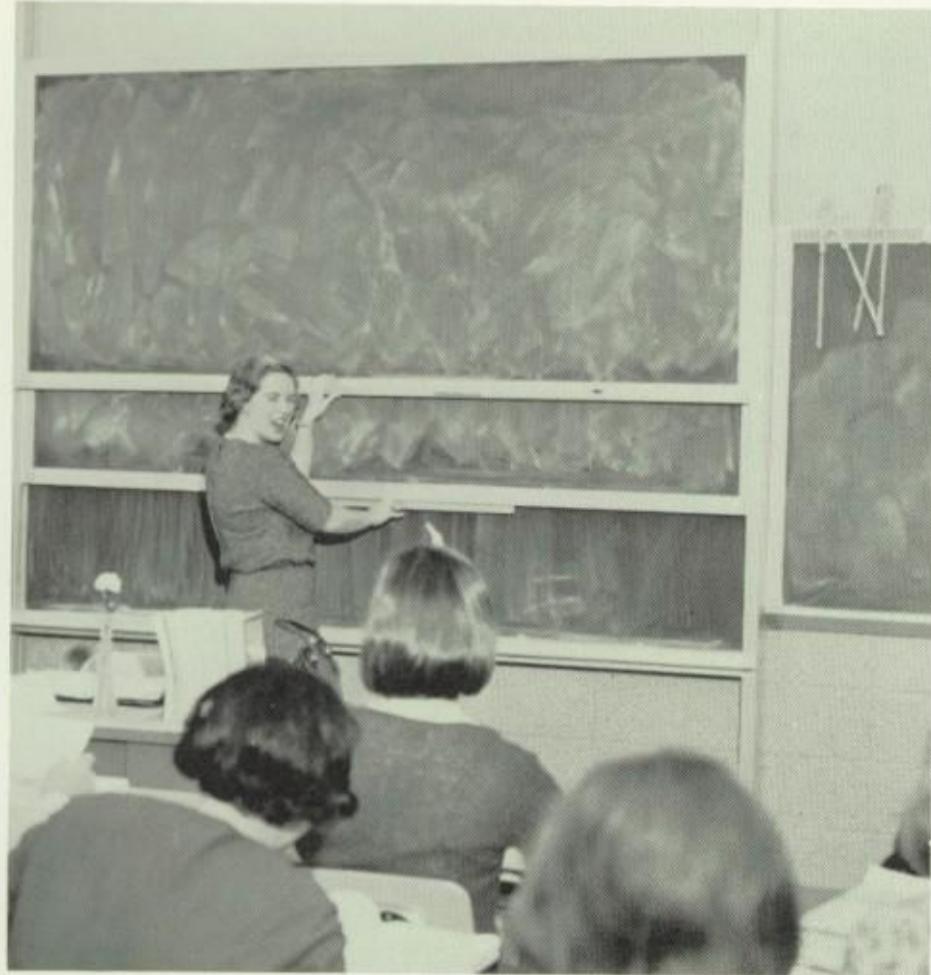

Advanced courses in mathematics and science and the formation of accelerated classes have proved a challenge to students of high caliber. Set theory, elementary functions, and matrix algebra stump even the best math students, while stout-hearted members of the Advanced Biology class study anatomy by dissecting embalmed cats.

Variations in the day-to-day classroom routine are provided by frequent assemblies designed with diverse tastes in mind. Subjects range from armed service talks for boys, movies for every student explaining the ill effects of smoking, to a fashion show for the girls.

Honors Day brings glory to deserving C.H.S.'ers. Before proud parents and smiling classmates, members of the National Honor Society and of the Rhode Island Honor Society receive their certificates of achievement. Varsity athletes, their skill recognized, receive the Clipper C.

Sports play an important role in the extracurricular life of students. Bleachers were filled to capacity for every football game in the fall and our gridders compiled a winning record. Hockey, basketball, cross country, and skiing are growing in popularity each year.

MOVABLE BLACKBOARDS prove an invaluable asset to math classes. Miss Earlene Mara especially enjoys baffling students by her expert manipulation of this new mechanism.

BOOKS GO, BUT THE KNOWLEDGE STAYS. Students of SMSG mathematics, Joyce Alix, Barbara Luiz, and Janice Wnek, "sorrowfully" turn in their yellow textbooks.

Modern math classes baffle already puzzled students

FUNDAMENTAL CONCEPTS, such as counting on one's fingers can often be easier and more accurate than manipulating a slide rule. Miss Earlene Mara illustrates this principle to Varnam Elliott.

DISCUSSING the national mathematics test, administered annually to juniors and seniors, are department head, Mr. John Crowley, and Mr. Robert Erdon.

HOW TO VOTE??? Class elections prove to be a dilemma for vacillating voters. Contemplating the many colorful posters are candidates Raymond LeVasseur, Thomas O'Connor, Terrence Tucker, and Donna Kon.

SEARCHING for a shortcut to class, Bruce Gorst is thwarted in the attempt by mystifying door in the new wing.

Hearty meals are necessary for scholastic endeavors

ADDING SPICE TO THE MENU, Senior Council members plan and serve a tasty meal. On receiving end are Raymond Kuzdeba, Peter Louthis (hidden), Frank Rodevitz, Donna Costigan. Serving are Mildred

Trade courses make our school truly comprehensive

NEW COURSE for freshman boys is the introductory program in industrial arts, designed to give students a sampling of the various trades. Learning woodworking skills with Mr. Clifton Boyle (at extreme right) are Richard Durand, Raymond Bergeron, John Henderson, Wilfred Gaboriault, Paul Houle, Richard Sweetman.

Illness struck Cumberland this year; for more than three months our principal Mr. Robert Condon remained in the hospital. Flowers, cards, and a fruit basket were sent to him by students and faculty. Well-wishers were abundant. All were happy to see him return. During his leave, his position was ably filled by Vice-Principal Thomas Skahan.

The abundant supply of paperback books seen around the school can be attributed to the salesmanship of Mr. William Connor and the yearbook staff. The bookstore, open during every lunch period, is operated for the benefit of the yearbook. Now, in addition to buying candy and chatting with friends after lunch, students can browse through the shelves, selecting new as well as classic titles from the ever-enlarging collection.

After school hours are also busy times, for the ringing of the two o'clock bell begins club period. These numerous organizations have large enrollments. "Future" clubs provide an opportunity for members to learn of professions which interest them. Hobby clubs unite students who share a common interest.

A time just for fun, Saturday night dances, is happily anticipated. Music, although usually in the form of popular records, is sometimes provided by talented classmates. Upperclassmen mingle with lowerclassmen, people get acquainted, and all have a good time.

WOODWORKING STUDENTS select the proper tools for their projects. Preparing for the day's work are Edward Cross, Walter Jamroz, Donald Rawson, David Ballou, and John Walowicz.

FUNDAMENTAL DRAFTING TECHNIQUES are taught in mechanical drawing classes. Because of increased enrollment, additional classrooms and more modern equipment have been installed.

SENIORS from Cumberland traveled to Salve Regina College to participate in the model United Nations Conference. Representing Soviet countries were Peter Louthis, Steven Bartosiak, Raymond Kuzdeba, Claire Forcier, Janice Wnek, and Elizabeth Howes.

Cumberland scholars undertake varied enterprises: art

SEEKING INFORMATION, which will aid them in their economic seminar in Boston, are Wayne Remington, David King, Gerald Gosselin, and William McKee. The convention, held to discuss current problems, lasted two days.

TRANSPORTATION OF AUDIO-VISUAL EQUIPMENT has its ups and downs. Operating the dumb-waiter are Wayne Remington and James Searles.

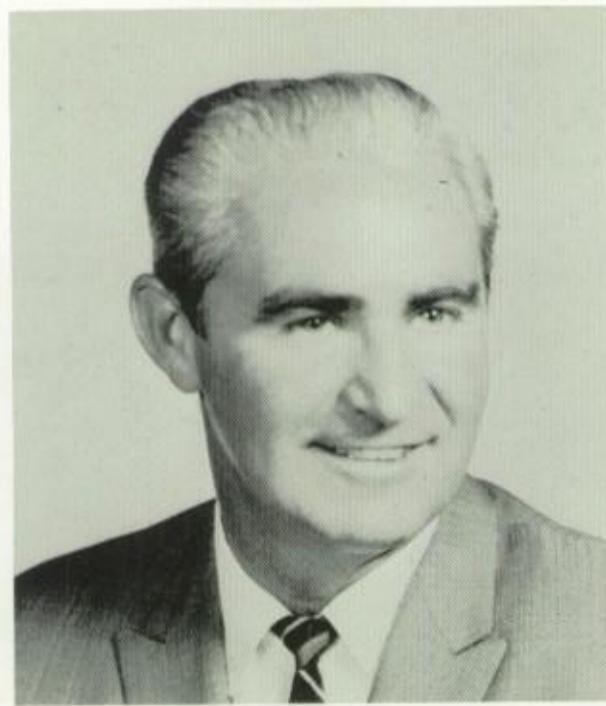

PERSONNEL

Throughout our four years, we tend to overlook the prominent role our teachers play in our lives. It is they who guide us through some of the most difficult times of our youth. We entered high school as inexperienced adolescents, and through their efforts, we are departing with the invaluable principles and knowledge they have instilled in us. Now as graduation has made us realize their importance, we are grateful to these people who helped us in our growth toward maturity.

Able administration pilots students toward success

School administration plays a prominent role in stimulating student activities. The chief aim of the administration department is to stimulate the intellectual, social, and athletic aspects of our school. The responsibilities of this department expand as the population of the town increases. Greater educational demands require that the school officials present a more extensive program.

Head of this department is Mr. Bernard Norton, superintendent of schools. His duty is to see that the town of Cumberland offers the best possible education. Through his frequent visits to the high school, Mr.

Nawrocki provides a link with the administration office. Clerical work in the school administration building is performed by Miss Edith Quinn, personal secretary to Mr. Norton. Also on this staff are Mrs. Lillian Connors and Mrs. Helen Oakley.

Able administrator of Cumberland High is Mr. Robert Condon. Despite the constant demands of the principalship, Mr. Condon always has the time and interest to advise our class in matters of school functions. He also manages to administer well-directed discipline, and to impart to us advice concerning our future.

An invaluable help in the preparation of schedules and curriculum is Mr. Thomas Skahan. Mr. Skahan takes care of the attendance of the pupils. He also supervises the lunch programs and schedules club meetings during activity periods.

An able administration is the core of a smooth running school. Only through well managed and efficient supervision can the educational aspect of the school run smoothly. Thanks to our able administrators Cumberland High can devote its utmost energy to educate the young people of our town.

DISCUSSING new administrative procedures are the members of the school committee: Mr. Edward Mousseau, Mr. Peter Bertozzi, Mr. Louis Kolodziej, chairman, Mr. Anthony Silva, Mr. Paul Pressey, Mr. William Free, and Superintendent Bernard F. Norton. Mr. Walter Curtin was not present for the photo.

SENIORS get expert advice from their guidance counselors in finding jobs and applying to colleges. Mrs. Medeiros talks with Karen Cabral, Janice Bessette, and Connie Callahan.

Chief among the goals of our four years of high school education is the development in each individual student of an insight into his own capabilities and potentialities. When this objective is achieved he can then discover in what way he can best serve society and fulfill his own ambitions in his adult life. The facet of the educational system at Cumberland High School which aids each student in his search for a position in the future is the guidance department.

Under the direction of Miss Margaret Cullen, Mrs. Lucy Medeiros advises the girls in the classes of 1965 and 1967, while Mr. Richard Lynch guides the boys. Mr. L. Russell Connell advises the classes of 1966 and 1968.

In addition to the hundreds of catalogues and leaflets pertaining to the colleges, business schools, and preparatory schools throughout the nation which are available to interested students in the guidance office, a new program of group guidance has been instituted this year. Greatly aided by the Audio-Visual department and under the able direction of Mr. Connell, classes view interesting and informative films which discuss various careers, their requirements, and their opportunities.

Dedicated to assisting every student in finding that place where he can make the best use of his natural talents and acquired capabilities, the guidance department has helped many students to make the right plans for their futures.

HOMEROOM GUIDANCE CENTERS help students prepare for future education and careers. Utilizing the available materials are Pamela Coupe, Carolyn Bryce, and Ronald Champagne.

the student's comprehension of the English language

Firmly believing that the foundation on which education rests is a working knowledge of language and its artistic expression in literature, the English department at Cumberland High School, headed by Miss Margaret Powers, provides a broad comprehensive course. During the first two years, grammar is the main emphasis, although literature is studied. In the junior year a concentrated course in American literature is presented, while the focal point of study in the senior year is English literature. Dickens, Shakespeare, and Hardy are some of the authors whose works are examined. The four years of English required at Cumberland attain a certain amount of continuity by means of cumulative reading cards. Each student keeps a record of the books he has read and the research papers he has completed, throughout his four years.

More specialized study in various aspects of English is available to interested students. The world literature course conducted by Miss Mary Langhorn, provides an extremely interesting and thought-provoking study of authors from Homer to Mann. In the creative writing course, Miss Rosemary Ball patiently but enthusiastically encourages students to express their thoughts on paper. In the process of the course, the students write poetry and newspaper stories, and culminate their achievements by writing a short story.

Developmental reading classes under Mr. John Gorman, endeavor to increase reading speed and comprehension and build vocabulary skills. Modern specialized equipment enables students to advance according to their own capabilities. Speech courses range from debating to speech therapy.

As the population at Cumberland High increases, so does the need for more classrooms. With the opening of the new wing in September, 1964, several larger and more modern rooms were acquired by the English department. A new storage room to accommodate the many novels, biographies, and anthologies was also added.

Under the direction of Miss Katherine Smith, department head, business education at Cumberland High School prepares students to meet the demands of the commercial world. This goal is accomplished through the expert instruction of our business teachers, who train students in the competent management of various office machines as well as in other commercial skills.

The business department also aims to prepare college bound students interested in the fields of Business Administration, Accounting, Business Teaching, or Secretarial Science.

In addition to the traditional business subjects which are taught, such as typing, bookkeeping, and shorthand, a unit of study on automation has been introduced this year, in keeping with the accelerating pace of our world today. This class causes students to become aware of the changes which automation will produce and prepares them to meet the changing standards it will effect. An interesting course in business law is available to students who wish to familiarize themselves with the laws of our society. It provides an excellent background for any future business occupation. Emphasis is also placed on the necessity of cultivating proper personal and social traits pertinent to success.

Business courses acquaint the student with skills necessary for success.

Supplementary to classroom instruction is the experience business students gain by practicing what they have learned. Responsible students apply their knowledge of business techniques by performing clerical work in the main office, in the Audio-Visual department, and by operating the student finance office, both during and after regular school hours.

Many business students receive job offers long before they graduate. Business firms and private industries often inform the business department of openings for persons trained in certain capacities. The school is usually able to recommend students for the positions.

Having benefited from the comprehensive business education obtained at Cumberland High School, graduates are thoroughly prepared to cope with the challenge of our modern business world. Following the precedent set by former C.H.S. students, they become a welcomed asset to the community.

Applied vocational skills prepare interested students for careers in the ever-widening fields of industry and engineering. At Cumberland High School the industrial arts course, under the direction of Mr. Joseph Griffin, devotes its time to the development of the basic principles necessary for a firm foundation and a complete understanding of the subject.

Among the varied courses offered are automotives, electricity, woodworking, mechanical drawing, and a new electronics course. From these courses each student chooses a particular one in which he feels he will be most proficient and then pursues it through his four high school years. The object of pursuing one course is to develop an unfailing interest and an exact knowledge for a post-high school job or as background study.

ACCELERATED COURSES in architectural design are a new addition to the vocational department. Working on a difficult project are Roger Soucy and Peter Namaka.

Each shop is supplied with sufficient tools, excellent equipment, and is supervised by experienced teachers. The electricity shop has many instruments. Included are a cycloscope, tube testers, and signal generators. In this course the boys become acquainted with the intricacies of electrical wiring and switches.

Mechanical drawing students are presented complex problems which they solve by thoughtful and logical induction. They attempt to solve these problems with the use of parallel straight edge kits. The mechanical drawing department also makes extensive use of its blue print machine. This machine duplicates a print from the original engineering print.

Woodworking students have available to them many types of saws, planers, and other equipment which complement their productive work. Interested senior boys are encouraged to start a project in woodworking, usually a useful piece of furniture.

In our space-minded era, the demand for students with advanced mathematical training is growing. Cumberland High School's mathematics department, headed by John E. Crowley, offers accelerated math courses and a preview of college work.

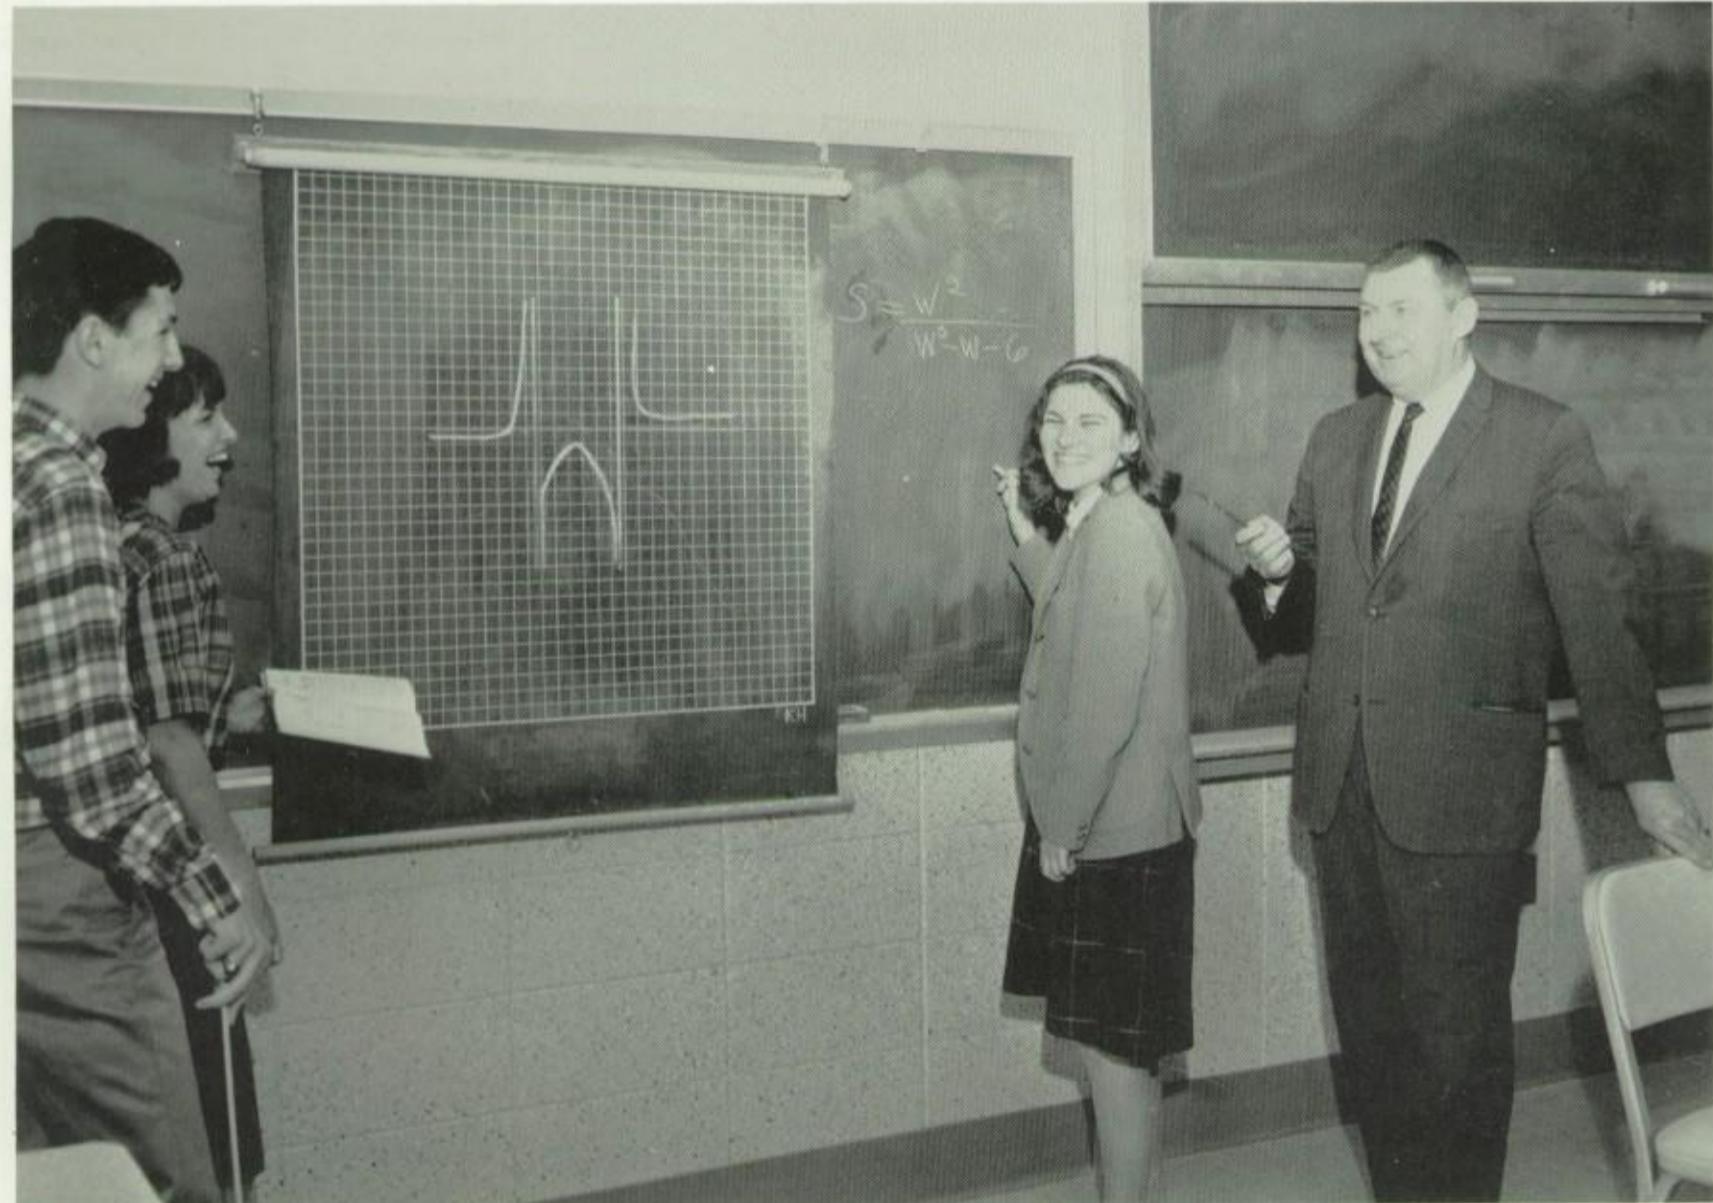

This year's graduating class will be the first to complete four years of the S.M.S.G. (School Mathematics Study Group) program. The purpose of this course is to provide the students with a sound mathematical background and to help them develop the power of logical deduction and reasoning.

All advanced groups receive four years of training in this special program. Among the subjects included in the curriculum are matrix algebra, set theory, and elementary functions. The "A" group follows the traditional math, but studies introductory calculus and statistics in their senior year.

Field trips help to show students how their mathematical knowledge is used outside of school. Computer laboratories prove to be very worthwhile and interesting places to visit, since they are a modern invention involved in solving many complicated problems.

The progressive research in all phases of these concepts assures the continuance of the modern approach to math.

GRAPHIC TRIGONOMETRIC FUNCTIONS can be fun. Mr. Crowley instructs his college mathematics students: Steven Bartosiak, Patricia Piepszna, and Carolyn Bryce.

Paralleling the rapid changes in today's world, the science department at Cumberland High School, headed by Mr. Eugene Conway, has also realized many advances. The biggest event in the department this year was the opening of the science lecture hall in the new wing of the school. This college-type room, coupled with large group instruction and new, more sophisticated teaching equipment, has given many students a preview of what to expect in college.

September, 1964, saw the introduction of advanced science courses—for college preparatory seniors. Mr. Traian Nacu conducted a class through a difficult college text in biology with the hope that some of these students would try for advanced placement in their first year of college. Another group of seniors participated in an advanced course in biology and physiology, with Miss Judith Pelchat. A third group under the supervision of Mr. Stephen Wujcik and Mr. Conway received a semester's instruction in C.B.A. Chemistry and P.S.S.C. Physics.

The incoming freshmen were introduced to a difficult version of B.S.C.S. Biology while sophomores continued with C.B.A. Chemistry. Modern laboratory equipment to supplement these new courses has also been acquired this year.

SOPHOMORE C.B.A. CHEMISTRY STUDENTS make use of the new lecture hall. Illustrating a point with the overhead projector is Mr. Eugene Conway.

Studying a foreign language enables students to gain an understanding of a second language in addition to broadening the knowledge of their own language. The present curriculum offers Latin, French, and Spanish. The increasing number of department members illustrates the growing number of students interested in languages.

During the first year, students receive a basic foundation in the rules of grammar. This is not the only aspect that is covered, however. Most classes learn the customs of the people and the country by studying literature. In advanced French classes, students become acquainted with famous French works. They not only analyze the poems, but they study the author's life and the factors that influenced his works. An outside activity that is connected with the French classes is the Junior Alliance. The members attend monthly meetings held at various schools and conducted completely in French. Entertainment is offered in the form of French slides, singers, and puppet shows.

Latin classes also participate in extra activities by listening to recordings of ancient Greek tragedies. Among these tapes are Oedipus Rex and Catulli Carmina, which are obtained from the Providence library.

The language laboratory develops a proficiency in speaking the language. The lab plays an important role in improving the student's pronunciation. Once a week members of each class report there and make use of tapes that accompany their text books. They listen to the voices of expert speakers and repeat phrases after them.

MAP WORK encourages class participation in the study of modern history. Locating a place under discussion are Janice Bessette and Michele Bennett.

POINTING OUT William the Conqueror on the Bayeux Tapestry is Mr. David Lynch. Ancient History students, Michael Lind, Gerard Laporte, Lois Freeman, and Mary Grant, view this ancient recording of the Battle of Hastings.

Members of the social studies department attempt to bring to the attention of students a recognition of the social, economic, and political forces that have shaped the modern world. To attain this goal the department works cooperatively within itself and also with the other departments.

This year the ancient history and Latin classes heard authorities speak on the Greek and Roman civilizations. They also visited the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

American and modern history classes attended lectures given by social studies department members on Napoleon, Lenin, Marx, Nasser, and Gandhi. These lectures bring individual persons to life, and their accomplishments become real to the student.

By investing money in stocks, the economics classes have gained an insight into the intricacies of the stock market.

Social studies students have participated in the model legislature, an economic seminar, the Voice of Democracy contest, the American Legion oratorical contest, and the model United Nations.

Art department gets new location with added equipment

IRENE E. GEDDES
Rhode Island School of Design, B.S. Art Ed.; Art Club.

This year the art department, under the supervision of Miss Geddes, moved into a new home. It now occupies a spacious room in the new addition.

Among the many courses offered this year, ceramics was popular with many groups of students. The students started out with pinch pots, worked up to a basic form, such as an ashtray or a bowl, and finally decided on their finished product. The kiln and potter's wheel were the focal point of this activity.

Tissue paper pictures, sketching, and creative art work also helped to stimulate the talents of the art students. The basic aim of the art department is to develop a creative and active mind through expression in the various art media.

CERAMICS is one of the many aspects of art offered at Cumberland. Adding the final touches to a pinch pot is Theresa Lane.

TOUCHES OF THE FAR EAST create an atmosphere of Oriental splendor in the art wing. Adding a final picture to this display are Paul Grumbach and Claire Marie Forcier.

MOLDING CLAY is the primary stage of ceramics. Maureen Hinds is shown modeling a creation of her own.

Developing musical talent is enjoyable and beneficial

Cumberland High School's music department offers a wide and varied program to students who are musically inclined. For those who are interested in music appreciation and vocal technique, classes conducted by Mrs. Nectar Lennox prove to be both exciting and beneficial. Each student's taste is accommodated, for studies range from classical music to the latest folk tunes.

All students participate in gathering research materials for background information about composers and their works. They prepare papers on their subjects which they read to the rest of the class. In this way they share their knowledge with their classmates.

A new concept introduced this year, is that of music dictation. Students attempt to record notes as they listen to a selection played on the piano.

The instrumental division of the music department, headed by Mr. Francis Carney, provides instruction for beginning students as well as for veteran performers. Practice rooms are provided for those who wish to advance on their own, but Mr. Carney is always available to give expert advice and aid. The potential of each student is catered to, for the ultimate goal of the department is to instill a deep appreciation and a greater enjoyment of music.

Home economics girls apply skills in and out of class

Home economics is an elective offered to all girls during their four years at Cumberland High. Since homemaking is a vocation that is important to all women, the home economics program familiarizes the students with all areas of family living.

Freshman homemaking is planned to meet the needs of the adolescent. At this age personal appearance and the ability to make friends are vital. Their basic health and nutritional habits should be formed during these critical years.

In addition to the various books that are used in the course, audio-visual aides, guest speakers, and field trips are offered to give the pupils a broader knowledge and to help them apply their abilities and training.

The home economics student at Cumberland studies the problems of family and community living. The awareness and understanding gained through these studies prepare the individual to assume her role as a contributing member of society.

SEWING is an asset to a proficient homemaker. Home economics students Diana Cook and Arlene McKenna demonstrate their skills.

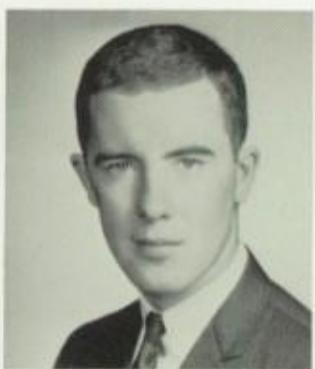

RECOGNIZING the quality of a cut of meat is a basic requirement of good cooking. Developing this skill are Jane Smith and Janice Palin.

USING MODERN EQUIPMENT in the practice of the culinary arts is part of the home economics course. Among the many students who benefit from this experience is Linda Whipple.

Physical education classes inspire sports participation

Coordinated physical education programs supplement academic studies and provide an opportunity for the Cumberland High student to develop the "whole man". Girls' gym classes are supervised by Mrs. Norma Brusko, while Mr. Anthony Chrostek directs the fitness activities for the boys.

Calisthenics, gymnastics, games of volleyball, basketball, softball, and soccer augment a rigorous physical fitness program. Girls' intramurals include exciting games of volleyball and basketball. Boys participate in touch football and basketball.

Modern and varied gym equipment make classes challenging and exciting. The trampoline, the parallel bars, the ropes, rings, and stall bars, provide the means for vigorous exercising. This apparatus is most important in the successful production of the annual gym show.

A new class, under the supervision of the school nurse, Mrs. Evelyn McCann, has been introduced to students interested in the nursing profession. This course provides an elementary presentation of physiology and pharmacology, thus providing background material for those who intend to further their education in the field of medicine.

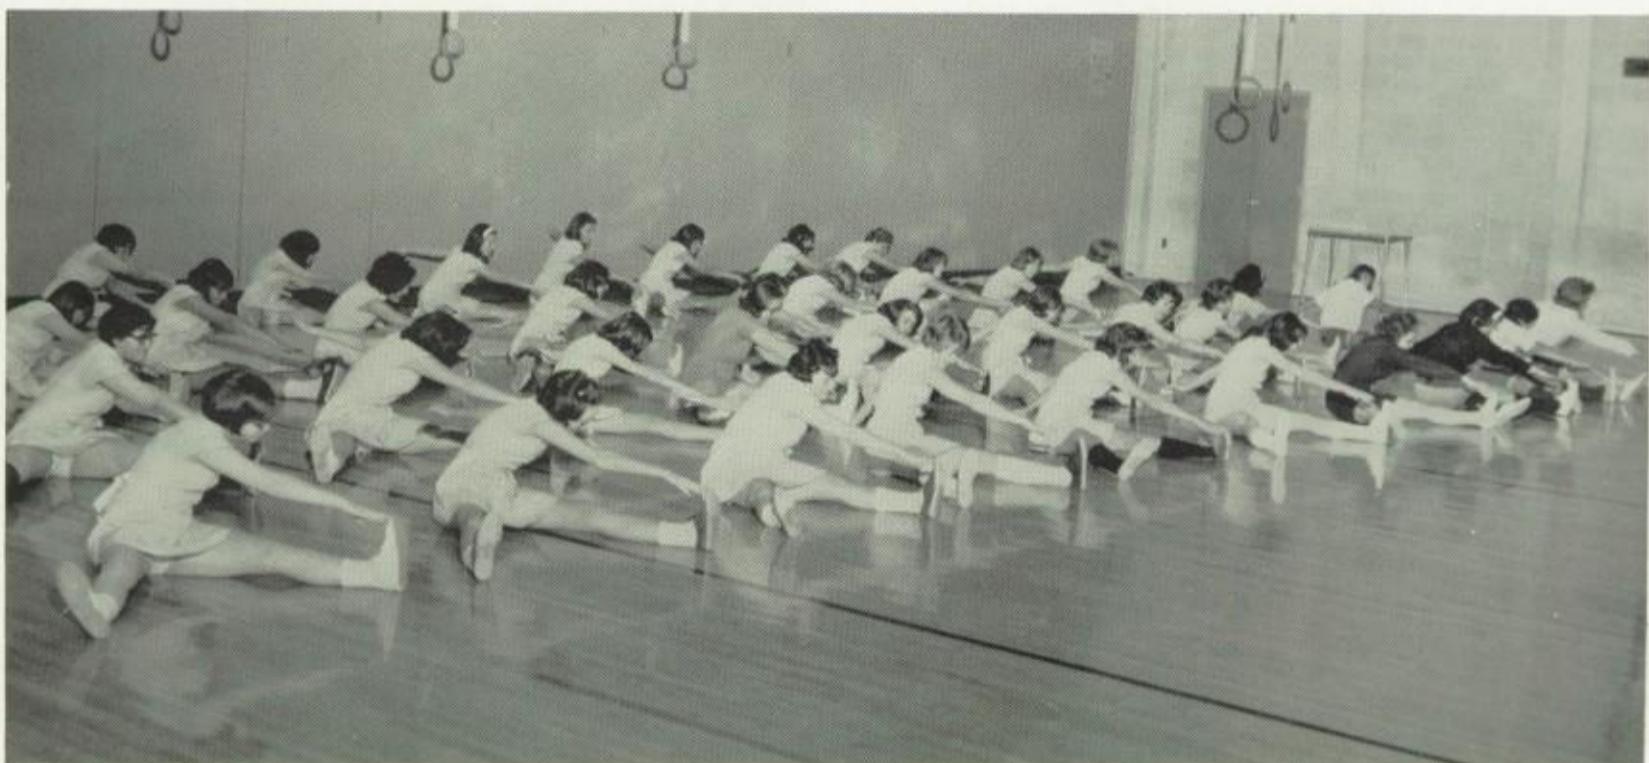

The girls' basketball team is an extracurricular activity which enables athletic-minded students to participate in a league sport. Ably led by their captain, Irene Lefebvre, the squad devotes its time and energy to improve its skill on the court. Although the season consisted of only two games, the team's drive and spirit made up for their lack of experience.

By providing a stimulating physical fitness program, Cumberland High School gives the student a standard of excellence to follow throughout his life.

HE'S FLIPPED BUT LET'S HOPE HE DOESN'T FLOP. Robert Grigelevich demonstrates the art of tumbling.

ONE! TWO! THREE! FOUR! Calisthenics keeps Cumberland High girls trim and physically fit.

Library and audio-visual offerings continue to expand

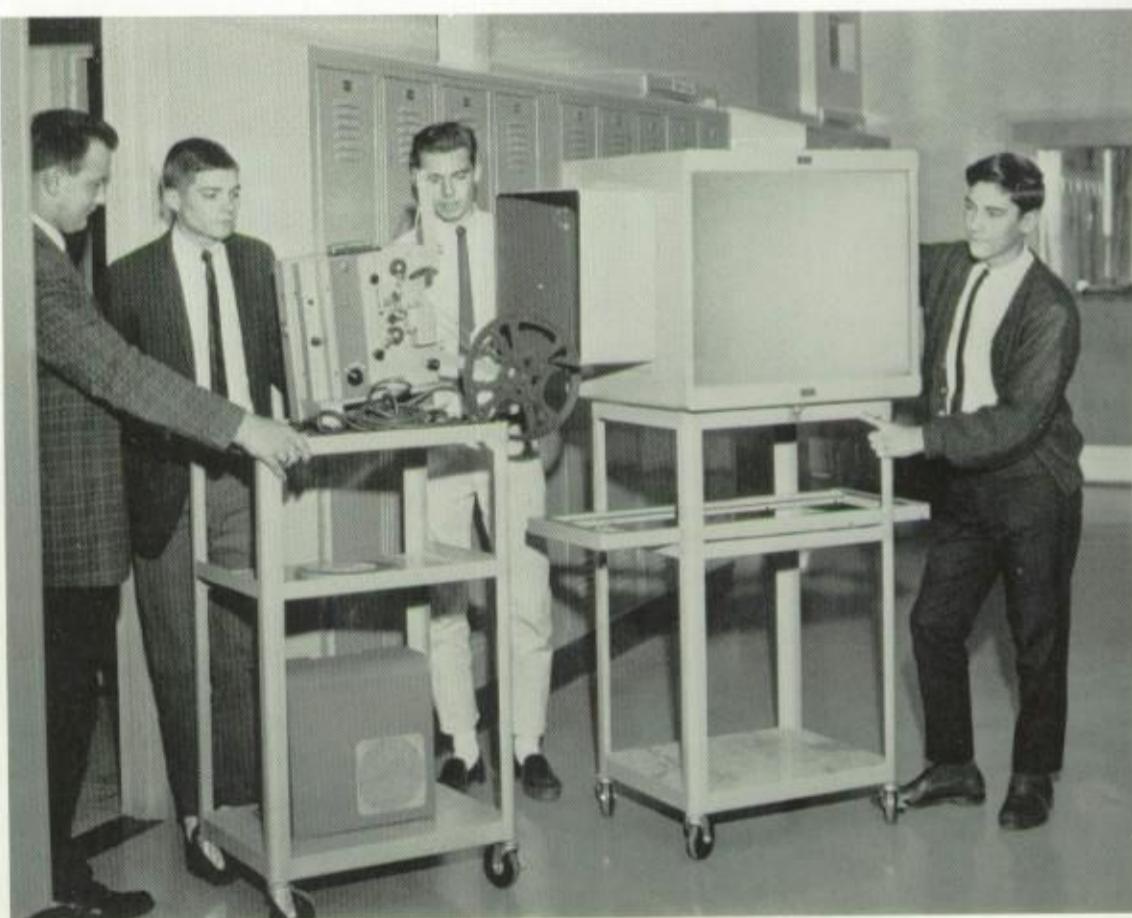

CHRISTINA R. CASSIDY
Rhode Island College, Ed.B.; Boston University, Ed.M.; Audio-Visual Club, Audio-Visual Director.

AUDIO-VISUAL AIDES are well trained by Mrs. Cassidy in the operation of such complex equipment as this rear projection unit. Previewing a film are Allan Grant, Lloyd Oliver, Richard Miller, and James Searles.

Teaching aids are an essential part of classroom instruction. The audio-visual department, headed by Mrs. Christina Cassidy, provides teachers with a means of illustrating subject matter. The students receive a clearer understanding of their lessons and combine it with the knowledge they receive in their regular class work.

Students are able to learn the technicalities involved in operating these machines by contributing their free periods or after school hours to receive the necessary instructions. Included among the various equipment are motion picture, slide, and overhead projectors, tape recorders, and record players. More students are showing an interest in this department by joining the audio-visual club.

Library science aims to stimulate an interest in the use of books for reading enjoyment as well as for reference work. This year the head librarian, Miss Mary Maguire, has initiated a completely modern and efficient program. Freshman and sophomore classes receive instruction in the use of the card catalog and the Reader's Guide in order to teach them the correct and efficient use of the library. Reference lectures are given to selected classes on specialized subjects areas. A professional library, including magazines, pamphlets, and books on the subject of education, has been organized for the use of the teachers.

Miss Ball, the newly appointed assistant librarian, finds her work very interesting and satisfying. Although helping to run a library smoothly involves complex work, she enjoys the behind-the-scenes activity necessary to the efficient function of the library.

The physical expansion of the library and the addition of many new and up-to-date books have made it one of the finest school libraries in the state. Among the innovations are twenty study carrels which provide for individual study.

SENIOR CLASS

This was our year. We were no longer merely a part of the student body, but suddenly we had become its core. Numerous guidance appointments, college boards, letters of acceptance, jobs, games, dances, plays—these filled our lives and we were happy. It was only on graduation day, with practice, the reception, class night, the signing of yearbooks behind us, that we realized our last year was over. We bade farewell, but the memories linger yet.

Embers of the past light fires of the future

FOR HIS DEDICATION and sincere interest in our activities, class advisor, Mr. James Griffin, warrants the gratitude of the Class of 1965.

MOMENTS OF QUIET and solitude provide a welcome pause in the fast pace of a school day. Patricia Piepszna and Steven Bartosiak observe the early arrival of spring.

We were freshmen, lost in the maze of corridors, bewildered by the new world around us. But we were not alone in our confusion. Even upperclassmen needed directions to classrooms. The spacious, sparkling new building which had become our high school was a distinct change from the compact old school, crowded even with double sessions. This new school, with its innovations—large classrooms, modern equipment, excellent facilities in all departments—was ours from the first. We were its first four-year class; it was our first school of higher education.

The traditional Freshman Party, where classmates get acquainted, was held in November.

The annual One Act Play Festival provided a testing ground, pitting freshman talents against the stiff competition of upperclassmen. Our production was the comedy "Who's That Knocking at My Door?"

Swiftly our first year came to a close. We spent our last day as a freshman class at Nantasket Amusement Park.

September found us sophomores, eager to assert our superiority. Once more we entered into competition against the other classes in the play festival, this time presenting "Grandma Fixes Things."

For the first time Cumberland presented a gym show, which was to become an annual function. The skill and agility of professionals were displayed by classmates.

Months of hard work by various committees made our Sophomore Hop, the major event of the year, a delightful success. Sophomores and their escorts danced "In a Temple Garden." To complete the perfect night, we dined at Johnsons Hummocks after the dance.

Again we ended our year with a trip to Nantasket.

Upperclassmen at last! And with the prestige came responsibility. It was a year with tests—National Math test, PSAT, NMSQT, SAT.

It was a year of accomplishments. Our excellent gridders completed their season with only a single loss. Fourteen juniors were selected to attend the Saturday morning seminars at URI. Our presentation in the play festival, the tragedy, "Two Sides of Darkness," won first prize.

It was a year of glory. Class rings, long and eagerly awaited, were distributed in the foyer by the hard working committee. That same night we danced in the gym, now a colonial estate, to the soft strains of romantic music. Highlighting the prom was the coronation of our "Moonlight and Roses" queen, Sandra Cardono. A midnight supper followed at the Rome Restaurant.

It was a year to plan ahead. In June twelve members of the Senior Council were elected. The yearbook staff was appointed, and preliminary work on our REFLECTOR was begun. We ended our year riding whirling amusements at Ocean Beach Park.

It was the big year—our year! We were seniors! Meeting yearbook deadlines and collecting class dues occupied before and after class hours. SAT's and achievements taxed the retentive powers of our college-bound classmates.

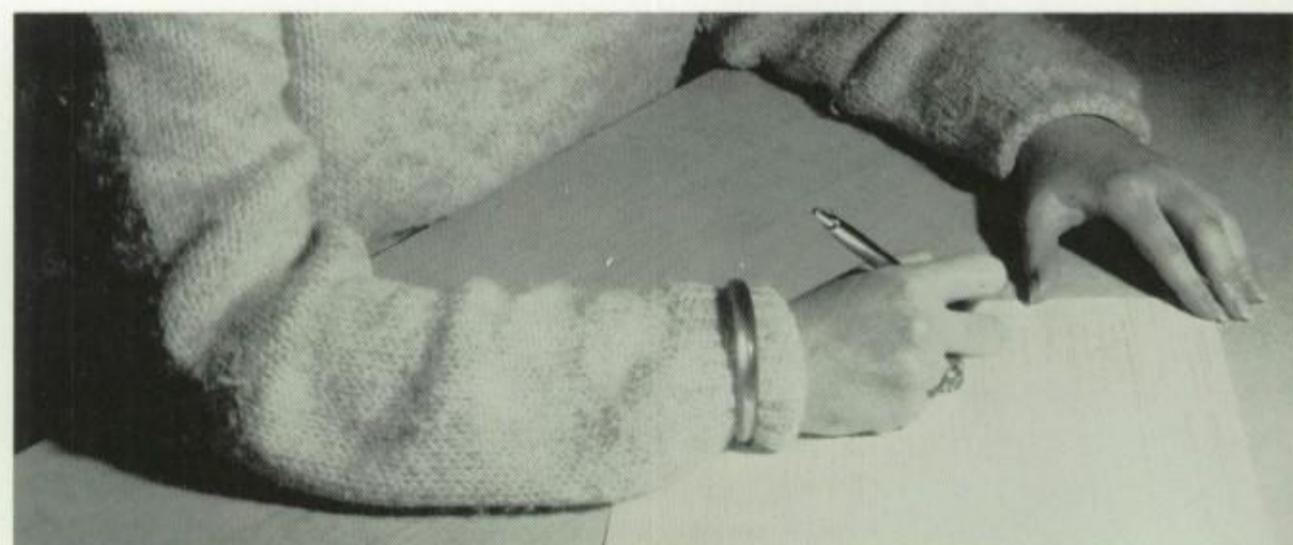

A touch of glamour was added to the gridiron when our lovely Homecoming Queen, Lucille Raiche, was crowned by senior class president, Raymond LeVasseur. The queen and her court were honored at a dance in the gym that evening.

In the rustic setting of our "Harvest Festival," we danced to the music of the Tony Abbot Orchestra. Warren Procter and Linda Buco reigned as king and queen. Headed for the Colony Motor Inn Restaurant, starry-eyed couples left the gaiety of the dance.

Long hours of rehearsing, making costumes, and applying make-up occupied the time of theatrical seniors. Their reward was the successful production—The Sound of Music.

The end had arrived. Exams, graduation practice, the reception, class night, signing yearbooks, commencement exercises—these activities were the finale of our four years at C.H.S.

COMPLETING APPLICATIONS is a task familiar to all college-bound seniors.

ABLE AND LOVELY committee heads contributed greatly to the success of our Sophomore Hop. Around the quaint little bridge are Beverly Fiore, Donna Costigan, Pamela DeSaint, Sandra Cardono, Lynda Masterlerz, Elaine Titmas, and Joyce Alix.

Sophomores enjoy an evening in a Temple Garden

"IN A TEMPLE GARDEN" created an aura of oriental splendor. The quaintness of a Japanese garden was recreated at Cumberland High for the Sophomore Hop.

DANCING to the lively music of the Manhattans at the hop are Gail Gouin and her date.

HIGH POINT of the prom was the coronation of Moonlight and Roses queen, Sandra Cardono, by junior class president, Warren Procter. Attractive members at her court are Nancy Sharples, Joyce Alix, Lucille Raiche, and Linda Hoffmann.

Moonlight and Roses set elegant mood for Junior Prom

DECORATIONS CHAIRMAN of the Junior Prom, Isabelle Ullrich, and her escort admire her Prom favor.

MUSIC by the Ray Vallée orchestra adds a romantic touch as enchanted couples glide across the floor.

MEMORIES are made of this! The grand march culminates the evening of the Junior Prom.

PROM CHAIRMAN, Andrea Tucker, and her escort, William Whittaker view the splendor achieved by long hours of labor.

THE TIME HAS COME! Senior class dues, which help cover graduation expenses, are payable on an installment plan. Making a payment to Joyce Alix (at right) are Tony Sousa, Evelyn Horstman, and Patricia Watson.

Seniors find last year both busy and expensive

GROUP GUIDANCE helps seniors make final decisions about future careers. Mrs. Lucy Medeiros informs Suzanne Salois, Mary Lou Silva, and Margaret Oxley about various professions.

HARVEST SCENE sets the atmosphere for the senior dance. The ominous looking scarecrow gave authenticity to the theme, Harvest Festival.

Senior class talents displayed in 'The Sound of Music'

PLAINTIVE STRAINS of a Gregorian chant open the first act of The Sound of Music. The story involves a young postulant who leaves the convent to work for the Trapp Family.

YOUNG POSTULANT, Kathleen Conway (in center), smiles impishly while her superiors look on in disapproval. Dignified nuns are Linda Piela, Joyce Alix, Beverly Cupitt, and Barbara Walach.

This year the senior class proudly presented Rodger's and Hammerstein's famous musical, The Sound of Music.

For two and a half months the senior cast, scenery crew, and chorus worked long and hard to make their performance the best yet. Their efforts were guided by three able and dedicated directors: Mrs. A. Constance Sullivan, dramatics coach; Mrs. Nectar Lennox, music coach; and Miss Judith Pelchat, stage director.

The musical—sometimes gay, sometimes touching—is the true story of a young nun, Maria Reiner, who leaves the abbey to become governess for the seven children of the wealthy Captain Von Trapp, with whom she falls in love. Maria was memorably portrayed by Kathleen Conway, and Henry Marcoux did a fine portrayal of the captain.

Two performances were presented, and the auditorium was completely filled both evenings. The class of 1965's production of The Sound of Music will long be remembered and will serve as a high standard for senior plays in the future.

CO-STARS Elaine Titmas and Albert Antonio pose in the Victorian setting of the senior play production.

treault, Karen Dennis, Claire Marie Forcier, and Elizabeth Howes. Third Row: Janis Baptista, Cheryl Haczynski, Albert Antonio, Joseph Butler, Varnum Elliott, Jerry Aisis, Roland Frappier, and Janice Bessette. Absent are Roberta Maziarz, Emilia Lopes, and Linda Dickey.

Qualified seniors make Rhode Island Honor Society

ROGER BLAIN

DAVID FERREIRA

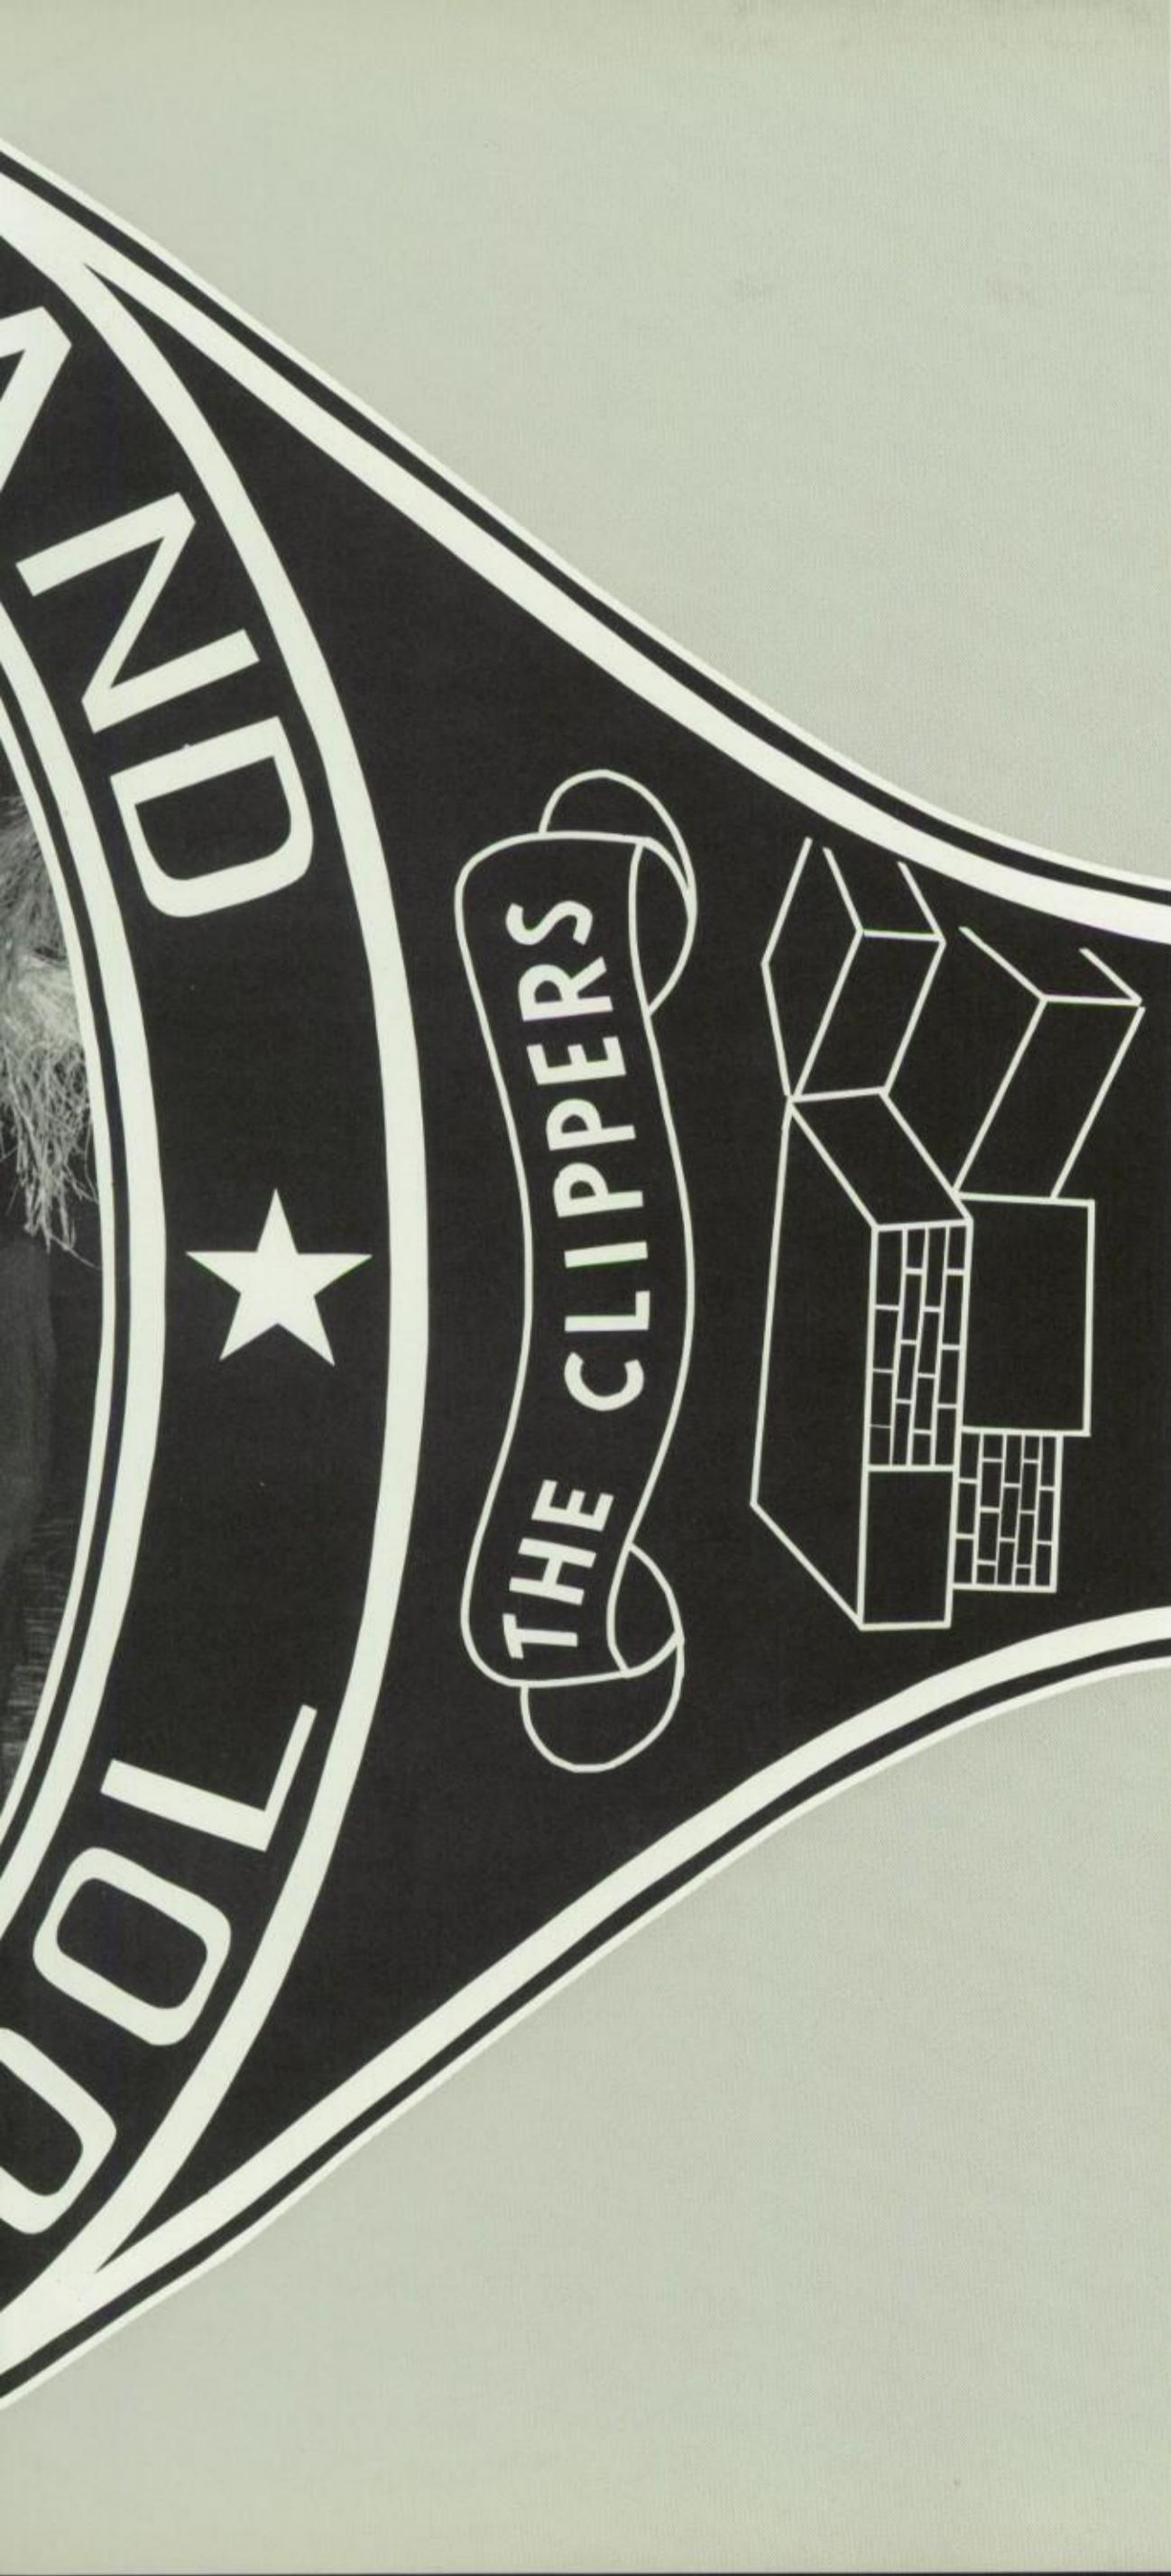

RICHARD GREGOIRE

IN MEMORIAM

For most members of the Class of 1965, high school opened the doorway to promising futures. Our four years at C.H.S. were a beginning. But for Roger Blaine, David Ferreira, and Richard Gregoire, deceased classmates, the halls and people of Cumberland High represent the last days of lives all too brief. In honor of the memory of these three boys, the Class of 1965 dedicates this section. Through the mercy of God, may their souls rest in peace.

UNDERCLASSMEN

For the present—underclassmen. Freshmen with first day jitters enter wide-eyed with wonder. Thoughts of the Freshman Party, cheering for their own teams, the first football game fill their minds. Sophomores concentrate on their Hop, their production for the One Act Play Festival, and their class trip. Rings and the prom fill the thoughts of every Junior, along with the frightening NMSQT and SAT. Sooner than any one of these classes expects, they will be seniors.

ENTHUSIASTICALLY enjoying the snow after a large snowfall last winter are the junior class officers: Howard Lancaster, Patricia Mercier, Linda Reilly, Joseph Gomes, and Christine Johnson.

SELECTION of favors for the Junior Prom is debated by class advisor, Miss Earlene Mara, prom chairman, Patricia Mercier, and Gale Read and Pamela Thomas.

Juniors struggle in hardest year of high school

Following this year's junior class was like peering through a kaleidescope. During the past two semesters, juniors participated in the Saturday Seminar Program at the University of Rhode Island. These classes helped familiarize them with college-level subject matter. Continuing to display their high academic caliber, juniors gained recognition for their excellent performance in the preliminary National Oratorical contest. Under the direction of Miss Aileen Burke, the juniors also presented "The Lottery" in the One Act Play Festival.

In sports, one can always find juniors on every major team, whether it's baseball, football, or basketball. With junior help, the Clipper Varsity Football team was placed in serious contention for the championship.

The Junior Prom, culminating the junior social season, was a tribute to the imagination of the Prom Committee. Long awaited class rings finally arrived. Juniors will treasure them as a symbol of four rewarding years at Cumberland.

"IT BALANCES!" say the members of the Junior Ring Committee with relief. Diligently totaling sales slips are Janice Healy, Michael O'Connor, Donna Kon, Graham Smith, Michael McConville, Gale Read, David Ferreira, David Bullard, Lorraine Lafond, Walter Reis, Ann Cyr, Audrey Belhumeur.

Sophomores are intellectually and athletically inclined

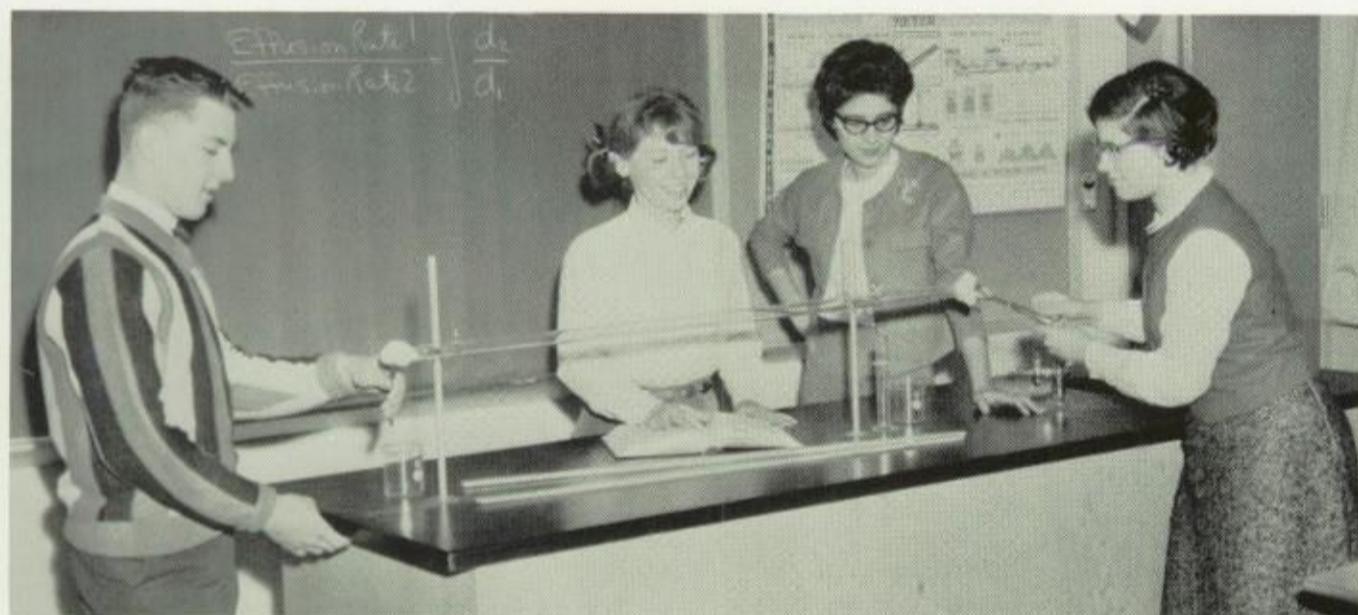

As sophomores the Class of 1967 enjoyed more prestige but also carried more responsibility. Following an exciting October campaign, Robert Ray was elected class president; Glenn McCusker, vice-president; Robert Sheldon, treasurer; and Joyce Jackson, secretary.

Traditionally, the Sophomore Hop is the main social event of the year. This year the theme was "South Seas Magic." Reigning over a splendid tropical paradise was the radiant princess, Jane Ward. Much credit is owed to Jane, our social chairman, and her assistants, who made the evening one which will be long remembered.

Sophomores excel in both athletics and studies. This year more than sixty students earned superior achievement ratings in the N.E.D.T. tests. Sophomores also participated in every school sport, and although they did not always win, they competed with courage and spirit.

Encouraged by the success of their freshman play, the sophomores made this year's Our Town by Thornton Wilder, an even greater triumph. In every way, the Class of 1967 carries its banner high.

CAUGHT by the South Seas mood, Robert Sheldon (above) scoops up a flower for his date as a souvenir of their Sophomore Hop. Watching his gallantry are Ruth LaBrie, Joyce Jackson, Mark Oakley, Gay Hamon, and James Catterall.

MAKING an unlikely entrance (below) as leaders of the Sophomore class are Robert Ray, president; Robert Sheldon, vice president; Glenn McCusker, treasurer; Joyce Jackson, secretary; and Jane Ward, social chairman.

FRESHMAN CLASS OFFICERS plan lively entertainment with books on games and parties. Freshman leaders are John McKee, vice-president;

William McKenna, treasurer; Bradford Dean, president; Karen Kinniburgh, social chairman; and Stephanie Karas, secretary.

Freshmen attempt everything, whether successful or not

September, 1964, brought together over three hundred confused freshmen, grouped under the title of "the Class of 1968." Now, in June, 1965, this same group of students is no longer confused, but united and dedicated to C.H.S.

Freshmen were helped through their first difficult year by their advisor, Mrs. Joyce Walsh. Class affairs were managed by Bradford Dean, class president; John McKee, vice-president; Stephanie Karas, secretary; and William McKenna, treasurer.

The first class activity was the Freshman Party, held October 16. This social gave the new frosh an opportunity to become acquainted by enjoying themselves together.

On the sports scene, the class of '68 was outstanding. Mr. Austin O'Toole's hard working freshman football team compiled a notable 4-3 record for the season. The basketball team, coached by Mr. John DeGoes, promised a rosy future for C.H.S.'s varsity. The talented freshmen finished second in their division after losing a heart-breaking play-off game by one point in the last second of play.

The freshmen's cultural contribution of the year was their production of Mrs. McThing in the annual One Act Play Festival. Their cast was directed by Mrs. Barbara Lipton.

The class of 1968 is the largest freshman class ever to enter Cumberland High. In the future, however, they hope to be noted not for quantity, but for quality.

ORGANIZATIONS

There are many clubs at C.H.S., each designed to suit the interests of the students. Increased enrollment in all of these organizations has shown the value of their activities. The many "future" clubs give members an insight into the requirements and opportunities of careers they may choose. Science clubs delve into the realms of the unknown in an effort to familiarize students with at least a small portion of a vastly enlarging world. "Hobby" clubs bring together classmates who share common interests. Participation in club activities helps to provide a well-rounded education.

SEARCHING FOR NEW IDEAS to produce a bigger and better yearbook, the REFLECTOR layout staff spends many hours in Publications. Hard-working members are Mary Barbara Orzechowski, Thomas Sullivan, Claire Marie Forcier, Patricia Macaulay, Linda Read, editor-in-chief, Patricia Watson, Sandra Cardono, Kathryn Brown, and David Hamanne.

Yearbook captures atmosphere of our school year

WHAT TO WRITE??? Literary staff members at a loss for words are Janice Wnek, Steven Bartosiak, Irene Lefebvre, Patricia Piepszna, Carolyn Bryce, Deborah Ben, Lucille Raiche, literary editor, Donna Dziedzic, Barbara Luiz, Mary Ellen Cartier, and Kathleen Conway.

Before the first bell rang, and even before the first student entered the school, the yearbook staff was busy planning what would fill the two hundred pages of the book. To carry on the work efficiently, the staff was divided into six subordinate staffs; the layout, literary, typing, subscription, and ad staffs are exclusively composed of seniors. The underclassmen have three groups.

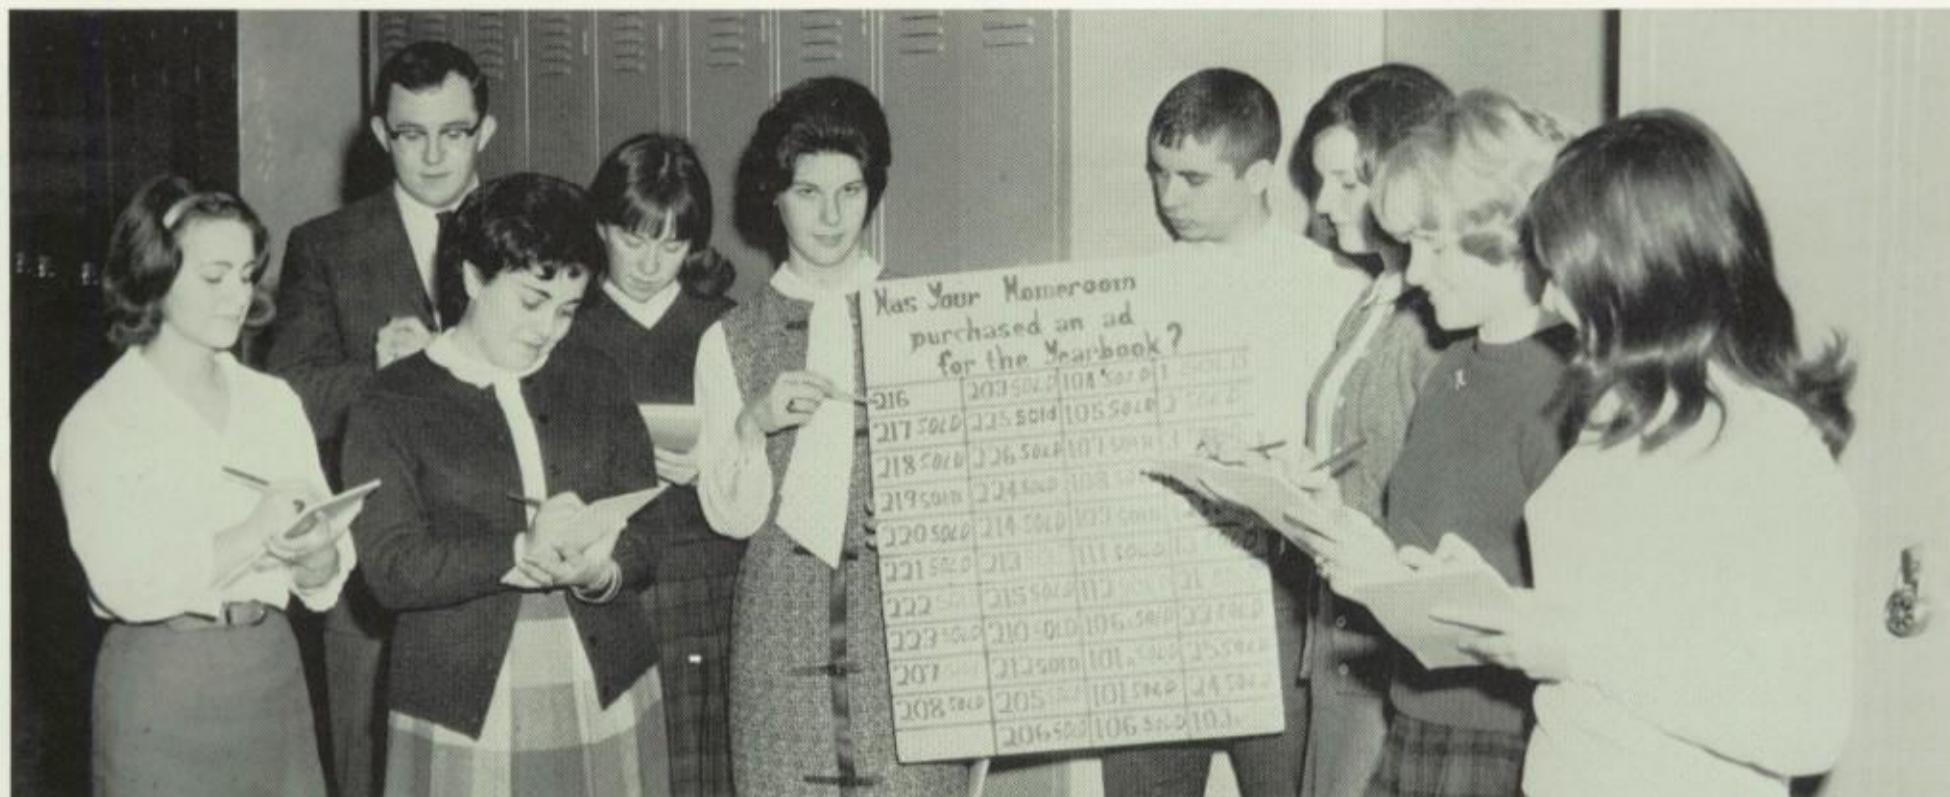

The members of the layout staff decided what photos were to be taken, cropped and arranged the pictures, planned the rough drafts, and filled in the final drafts. When all the work was done, they proofread the pages and made corrections.

When the pictures were taken and the pages laid out, the literary staff went to work to write appropriate captions for the pictures, to compose club and department write-ups to conform to the space allotted, and to choose the outstanding traits of each member of the graduating class. Mrs. Ann Whouley gave a considerable amount of time to correct the body copy. Every word printed in the book can be credited to the literary staff.

After everything was written, the typing staff rushed to meet the deadline. They had to be fast and accurate.

Before the final deadline, the yearbook staff voted to dedicate this edition of the book to their advisor, Mr. William Connor.

Meanwhile, as the other staffs were busy on their sections, the subscription staff, composed of David Hamanne, manager, and Patricia Piepszna were busy selling copies of the books.

AD STAFF found the selling of home room ads a lucrative business. Hoping to get a pledge for an ad from homeroom 216 are ad salesmen Eloise Manley, Joseph Butler, Florence Matook, Donna Costigan, and presents a comprehensive account of achievements

Rose Marie Proietti, Tony Sousa, Kathleen McClellan, Nancy Nelson, and Joyce Alix.

CHECKING OFF another sale for Home Room 206 are subscription managers Patricia Piepszna and David Hammann.

This year the juniors bought more books than anyone, with Home Room 206 leading in sales. Home Room 109 ranked the highest in the sophomore class, while room 11 copped the freshman honors.

All summer the ad staff visited manufacturers and merchants in the area soliciting ads. In the fall they continued by selling ads to the homerooms. This practice was started last year when Mr. Fred Nashawaty's homeroom bought an ad. This year every homeroom bought an ad, even though in certain cases it took superior salesmanship to complete some of the sales. The final result was tremendous. The yearbook made close to $3,000 in ads. The whole yearbook staff is indebted to these people and especially to Rose Marie Proietti, who sold the most ads.

Additional funds were raised by the paperback book store, which was operated by the yearbook. The bookstore was open every fifth period and after school on Tuesdays. A wide variety of books was offered and the student body took enthusiastic advantage of this available facility.

When the book was completed and the supplement was started, there was little left to do but hope that our yearbook could meet the standards set by the 1964 REFLECTOR. Last year's book won first place certificates from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, Boston University Scholastic Press Association, and the National School Yearbook Association. The National Scholastic Press Association awarded a second class honor rating.

School publications provide experience in journalism

PLACING PHOTOGRAPHS in the proper envelope is important training for the junior REFLECTOR staff. Working in room 108 are Suzanne Pelchat, Linda Jackson, Joan Smith, Alex Thompson, Albert Draper, and Donald Fleury.

FRESHMAN YEARBOOK STAFF examine yearbooks from previous years. New staff workers are Aurora Antunes, Mary Pereira, Christine Peloquin, Deborah Campano, Elise Thompson, and Thomas O'Connor.

COMPOSING WRITE-UPS for the sophomore contribution to the REFLECTOR are Susan Gonsalves, Susan Gray, Ellen Simpson, David Lapre, and Francis Wnek.

EXTRA! EXTRA!! The school newspaper, The Clipper, has reached the planning stages and happy are the staff editors Doreen Wachowisz, Albert Antonio, Audrey Belhumeur, Barbara Walach, editor-in-chief, Ruth Williams, and Susan Forrest.

Clipper staff members, headed by editor-in-chief Barbara Walach, worked to provide our school with a well-rounded newspaper.

Through the efforts of the staff and Mr. George Lough, faculty advisor, the Clipper achieved an entirely new scope. Better coverage was produced by the use of smaller prints. "Horoscope" and a "Social Calendar" were new columns added to the familiar "Inquirer", book reviews, sports coverage, club reports, school news, and editorials seen in other year's editions. Editorials were the contributed opinions of both the editors and the regular members of the staff.

The energetic Clipper staff received practical experience in the field of journalism while producing up-to-date editions of the Clipper.

Members of the Underclassman Yearbook Staff are of great assistance in preparing the final edition of the REFLECTOR. Each staff must prepare its own section of the yearbook. The only job they are not expected to do is layout work. However, each staff must prepare all the headlines, captions, and write-ups necessary for their pages and do the planning for their photos.

By working closely with the Underclassman Staff, the members learn that the preparation of a yearbook is a difficult but rewarding task. At the same time they gain experience that will be valuable to them if they serve on the senior staff.

Senior and Student Councils enforce the school laws

WEEKLY MEETINGS are held by the Student Council to discuss problems concerning student activities. The purpose of this organization is to give students an active part in school government.

Anyone visiting our school at lunch time would be surprised to find that there are no teachers in either of the cafeterias. Instead there are a few students wearing blazers with Student Council insignia on the pockets. These are the Senior Council members. They are the only supervision necessary to keep discipline. There are twelve elected members, six boys and six girls. At their first meeting they chose officers. The members who served this year were Warren Procter, president, Gerald Gosselin, Charles White, Peter Louthis, Raymond Kuzdeba, Frank Rodevitz, Mildred Meehan, Christine Alix, Sandra Cardono, Lucille Raiche, Elaine Titmas, and Donna Costigan. All of these people helped to plan two special lunches. The boys served at one and the girls at the other. Other duties the members have are to clean the cafeteria and to supervise at assemblies.

Besides the Senior Council all four classes elected members to the Student Council. Each homeroom has one delegate who wears a pin as a symbol of authority. Their job is to patrol the corridors at lunch and report any complaints the students have. During the year they were called on to perform other tasks such as selling stamps and yearbooks, and collecting class dues.

All the representatives of the Student Council and Senior Council met every Wednesday in the lecture hall. Through more frequent meetings the role of council has expanded. Mr. Frederick Lynch, new advisor, reorganized the club and supervised the annual dance.

SENIOR COUNCIL MEMBERS cooperate with the faculty in governing the student body. Supervising corridor are (from bottom) First Row: Donna Costigan, Lucille Raiche, Christine Alix, Francis Rodevitz, Charles White. Second Row: Warren Procter, Gerald Gosselin. Third Row: Sandra Cardono, Mildred Meehan, Elaine Titmas, Peter Louthis, Raymond Kuzdeba.

SELECTING A PRIZE-WINNING PLAY can be a difficult task. Senior dramatists, Henry Marcoux, Alice Olivastro, Susan Howells, Jane Marrion, Albert Antonio, and Susan Forrest, discuss the pro's and con's of various plays.

'Mary of Scotland,' 'The Lottery,' 'Our Town,' and who hold a lottery to choose a scapegoat to bear the ills of the town. Miss Aileen Burke directed Lynn Hadfield, Alex Thompson, Karl Marzocchi, and Audrey Bellumour in the leading roles.

The sophomore class also chose a story concerning a small town. Miss Mary Langhorn directed their presentation, Our Town, by Thornton Wilder. James Catterall, Peggy Cochrane, Susan Driscoll, and John Janusz acted in the major roles.

Adding a light touch to the evening was the freshman presentation of a scene from Mrs. McThing, directed by Mrs. Barbara Lipton, Howland Hartley, Michael Conway, Michael MacKinnon, and Marjorie MacNulty played the leading roles in this fairy tale comedy about a little boy who runs standing in the club by eliminating male competition—Albert Antonio.

Dramatic Clubs provide an opportunity for students interested in acting, lighting, scenery, make-up, and the many other facets of the theater to prove their talents. In conjunction with the English Department, the Dramatic Clubs presented the annual One Act Play Festival. On March 26, the members of the clubs displayed their skills expertly.

Under the direction of Miss Shirley Brandreth, the seniors presented an act from Mary of Scotland. It was the dramatic scene in which Mary is imprisoned in the Tower of London. Here she is visited by Queen Elizabeth, who asks that she abdicate her throne. Playing these two major roles were Kathleen Conway and Joyce Alix. Cast in the supporting roles were Albert Antonio, Henry Marcoux, and Thaddeus Grocki.

The juniors' well acted contribution to the festival was The Lottery by Duffield. It is the story of the people of a small town

MUSIC RESOUNDS from the walls of the auditorium. Cumberland High's glee club has received recognition for its outstanding performances.

Clubs and extracurricular activities supplement our Inherent talent, long hours of trying rehearsals, and expert direction have made the Cumberland High School Glee Club an outstanding choral group. This year's club expanded membership to over 200 students. So many fine voices were available that Mrs. Lennox, the choral advisor, had a very difficult job in choosing a small group to perform.

Always called upon for school assemblies, Mrs. Lennox can be relied upon to produce an excellent performance. The programs presented this year were a fine example. The senior play, The Sound of Music, incorporated more musical talent than has been evidenced in past productions of this nature. Numerous Christmas programs were responsible for a rigid rehearsal schedule during the months of November and December. In addition to the three performances of the student body, the chorus had other holiday engagements including a Parent-Teacher Association meeting, church groups, a community sing on the Pawtucket Library steps, and a carol sing at Memorial Hospital for the benefit of Mr. Condon.

Aside from the major Glee Club there are various other minor groups, smaller in size, which are chosen for special occasions.

ADDING DEPTH AND VOLUME to the Choir are the tenor and bass voices of the Boys' Glee Club. In addition to the Choir and the Boys'

The All-State Chorus is an example of this type of activity. As in past years, Cumberland's finest singers auditioned for positions in this choral group, which is composed of the best voices throughout the state. Chosen as members were Henry Marcoux, Charles White, Dennis Rebello, William Porter, Emilia Lopes, Susan Auclair, Marie Dandurand, Beverly Cupitt, George Aragao, and George Schofield. They spent two weeks at the University of Rhode Island last summer, with daily rehearsals as well as group socials. Later in the school year, this group performed at the annual teachers' convention in October.

PROVIDING delightful entertainment at various school functions are the talented members of the orchestra.

academic endeavors by inspiring group participation

Probably the hardest-working and yet least publicized club at Cumberland High is the Orchestra. Unknown to most students, this group faithfully practices three or four afternoons a week, under the direction of Mr. Francis Carney. Orchestra members had many opportunities to display their talents throughout the year at the various activities in which they took part.

No program is complete without a few selections from their classical repertoire.

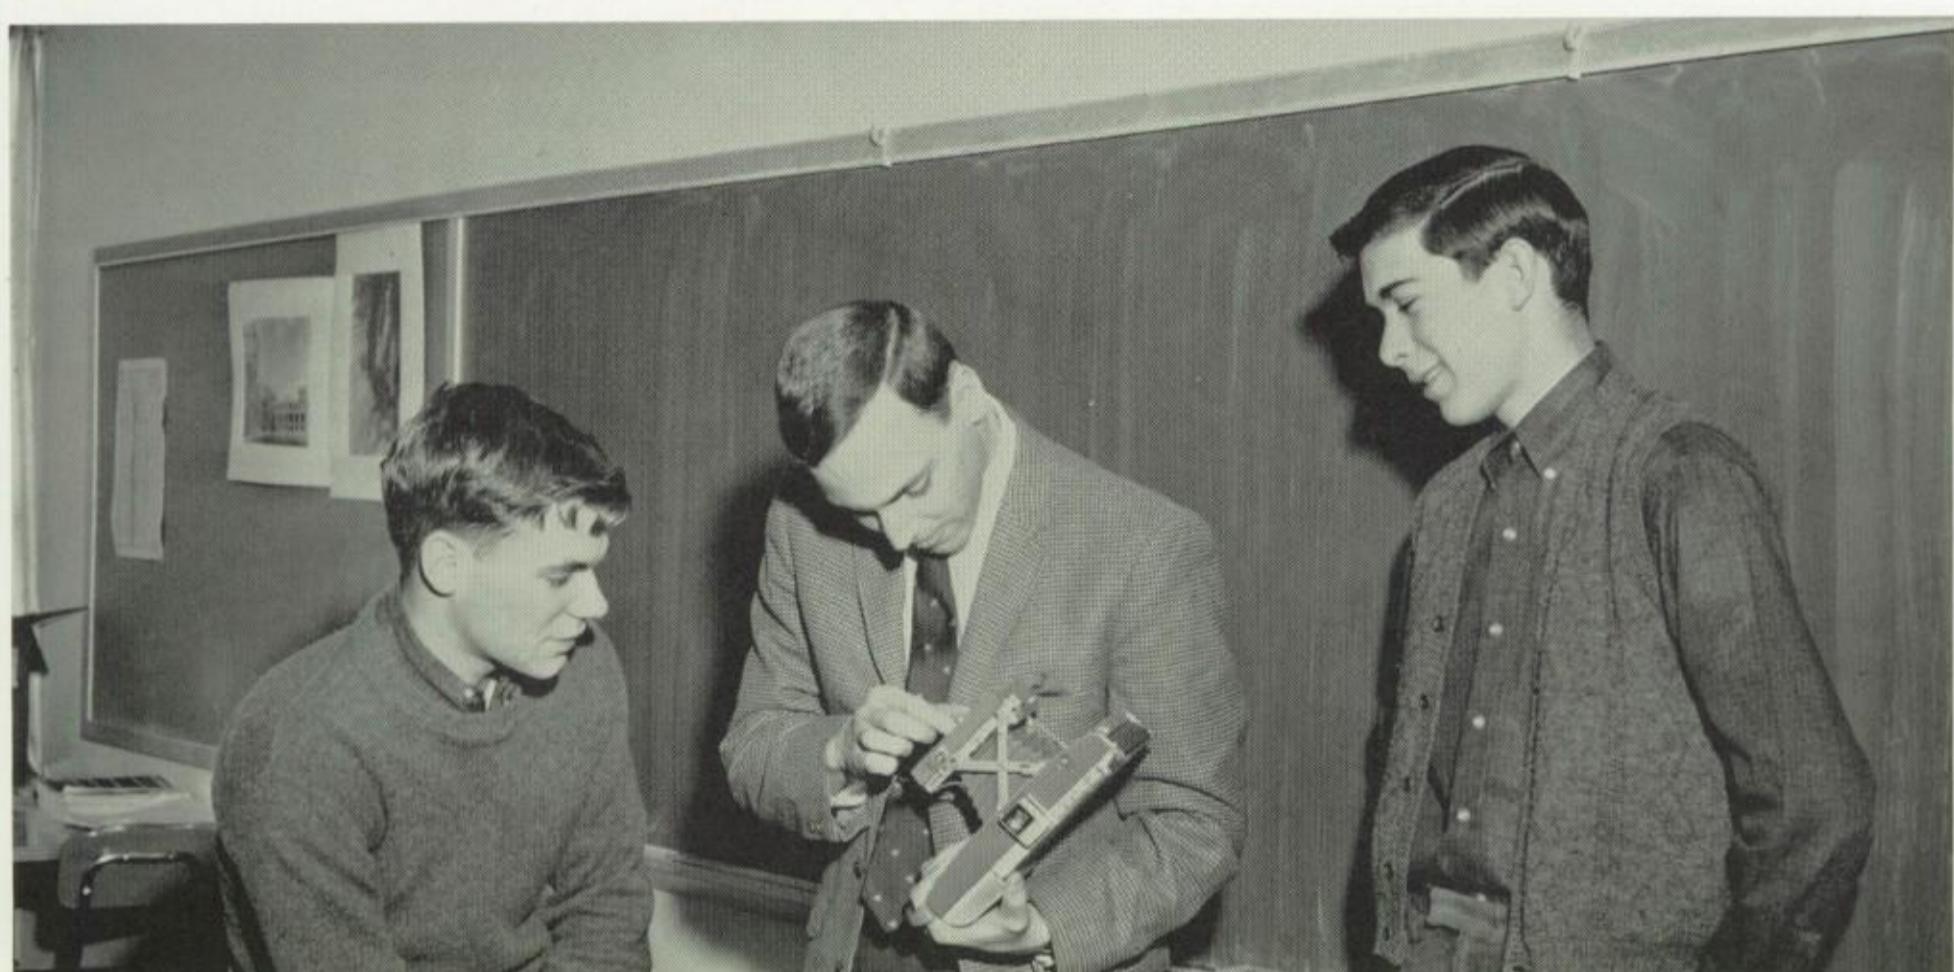

The Christmas program, a fine exhibition of talent and ingenuity, was a credit to the club and its advisor. Programs for the Spring Concert and graduation were equally noteworthy. An innovation this year was the after-school student recitals emphasizing both vocal and instrumental treatments of classical compositions by famous musicians.

Invaluable service to the school publications was provided by the photography club. The main purpose of the club is to further interest in photography and to provide instruction in the field of photographic work.

At the weekly meetings, the members compared photos and viewed movies made by students. Many of the members entered the Scholastic Photo contest sponsored by Scholastic Magazine.

GOOD PHOTOGRAPHY requires a steady hand and well kept equipment. Adjusting the lens, Philip Kalf gives pointers to Kenneth Graf and Alan Jannarelli.

CREATING clay models of amphibian embryological development are Bernard Lemos, Cheryl Murray, John Kulig, Michael Marcil, Ann Martell, and Stephanie Karas.

World of living things is subject of two organizations

WAGING THE BATTLE OF THE WEEDS are Neil Gomberg, Susan Carpenter and Helen Guszczyn. Members of the Home Gardening Club also landscape the center court.

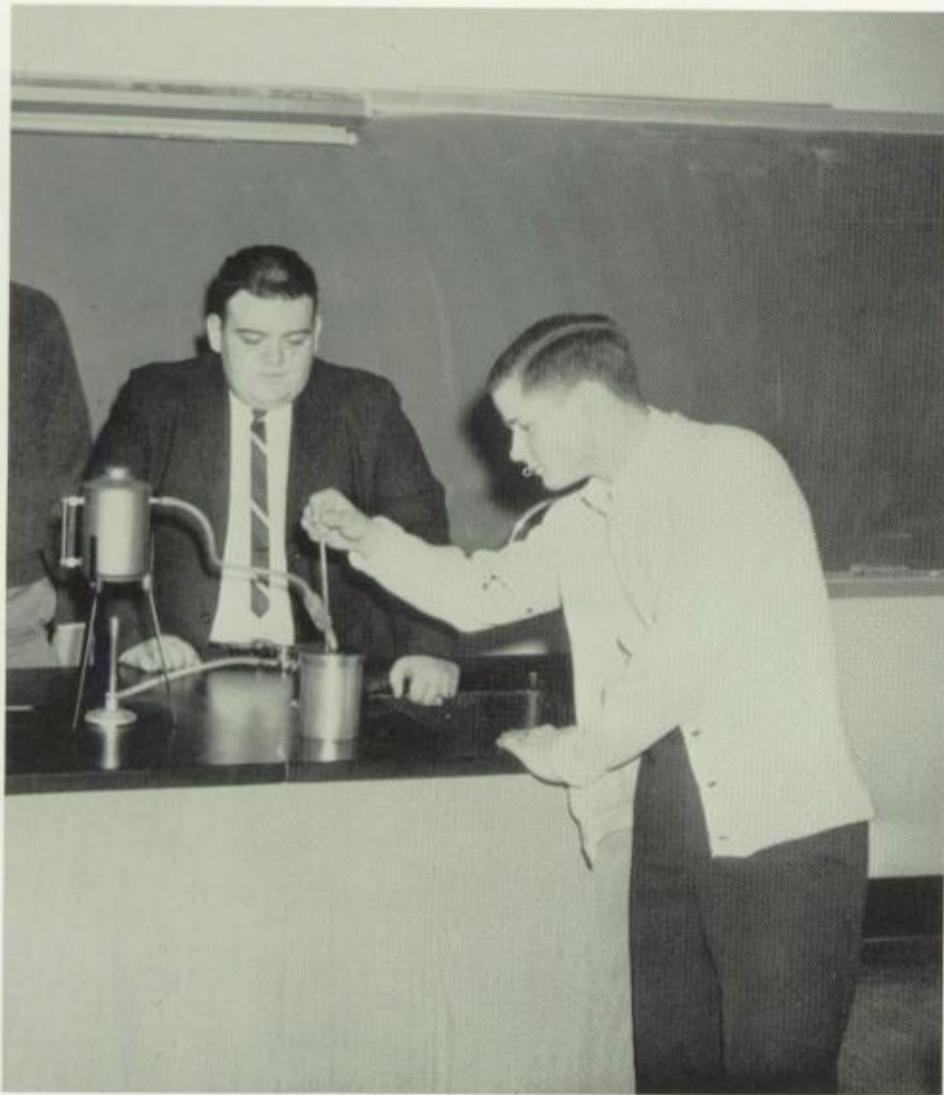

Miss Judith Pelchat is the faculty advisor of the Biology Club. This club, which was created for those students with an interest in and an aptitude for botany and zoology, has as its officers: Edward Kostka, president; Ronald Viestra, vice-president; John Kulig, recording secretary; Robert Rice, corresponding secretary; and Michael Marcil, program chairman.

In addition to performing various dissections and experiments, the club members have begun work on a constructive new project. They are now making clay models of the embryonic development of frogs.

The major event for the club this year was a field trip to the Boston Museum of Science. Here the members became acquainted with the various aspects of the science world.

Have you noticed our beautiful center court? Responsible for the artfully arranged and well cultivated flowers and shrubs is the Home Gardening Club. Under the direction of Mr. David Lynch, the members of the club plan the entire court themselves. This includes deciding on a floral arrangement, ordering the bulbs and seeds, and planting and nursing them. Officiating at the club meetings are Neil Gomberg, president; Albert Draper, vice-president; and Robert Ellston, secretary-treasurer.

Flowers cut from the center court are often used for such "practical" purposes as decorations for school dances and ornaments for teachers' desks.

USING THE METHOD of scientific observation, David Audette conducts the experiment to determine the heat of vaporization. A dedicated member of the Physics Club, Roland Frappier, observes with interest.

EXPERIMENTS WITH MISSILES enable members of the Rocket Club to explore the realms of space travel. Jan Czajkowski and William Flynn display the products of their hard work.

Science Club members learn through experimentation

By conducting experiments after school, the Physics Club members gained the practical knowledge of working with scientific equipment. The Physics Club was started by Mr. Fred Nashawaty to encourage the study of physics and to emphasize its relationship to mathematics and other sciences.

This year the Rocket Club perfected a number of light high velocity aircraft and a seven foot rocket to take a pollen count at high elevations. Also, Mr. Stanley Rzepiecki, advisor, explained aerodynamic forces of high speed missile structures.

Discovering and applying the principles of chemistry is the task of members of the Chemistry Club. Directed by Mr. Stephen Wujcik, club officers Karl Marzocchi and Patrick McVey planned trips to the Rhode Island Nuclear Reactor and the New York World's Fair.

MAD SCIENTISTS, Patrick McVey, Gerald Ferron, Dennis Finlay, and Karl Marzocchi, experiment in the chemical storeroom to discover a highly efficient explosive.

OPPORTUNITIES AND REQUIREMENTS of various schools of nursing are reviewed by officers of the Future Nurses Club: Frances Dandurand,

Civic-minded organizations render community services

PRACTICING THE FUNDAMENTALS of first aid are Thomas Menard, Joseph Musiol, Steven Johnson, Nancy Johnson, Patricia Mercier, and Kathy McGill.

IN PREPARING for National Education Week, members of the Future Teachers Club discuss plans to observe classroom procedures in Cumberland elementary schools. Checking final details are Carolyn Bryce, Nancy Nelson, Donna Dziedzic (seated), Patricia Lizak, Mary Barbara Orzechowski, and Pauline Nikodem.

Acquainting students with the opportunities open to them in collegiate as well as traditional nursing education programs is the aim of the Future Nurses Club. This goal was accomplished through film strips, speakers, informal group talks, and close cooperation with the school nurse. This year a freshman club devoted to service to others was formed. They prepared and distributed gifts for the elderly and cared for the nurse's linens.

Under the able direction of their advisor, Mrs. Veronica Smith, the officers—Pamela DeSaint, president; Kathy Houle, vice-president; Margaret Carter, secretary; and Fran Dandurand, treasurer—planned for a field trip for senior members.

Most informative and unique among clubs is the First Aid Club. More than a club, First Aid is also a class taught by Mr. James Booth. It is a certified course where a student may qualify partially as a life-guard or ski patrolman. First Aid is now a required subject for vocational students.

Emphasizing the value of an education, the Future Teachers Club introduces interested students to the field of teaching.

The Freshman-Sophomore Club, under the guidance of Mr. Robert Burke, collected and sent used clothing to a needy family in Appalachia. Mr. Joseph Beck accompanied the seniors to Rhode Island College and arranged for each of them to spend a day in an elementary school classroom. Other highlights of the year were a February cake sale and dance and a visit by Mr. Ronald Schofield, a past president of the club, who told about his junior year in France.

Homemaking talents and business skills are invaluable

College preparatory students found the Freshman Typing Club very beneficial to them. Its purpose is to provide an after-school course in typing for freshmen whose schedules do not allow them the time necessary for the full course during school hours.

Under the direction of Mr. Joseph R. Charland and Miss Christine Moosett, the students mastered the keyboard and developed speed and accuracy. Minor tabulation problems, forms for letters, manuscripts, and term papers were some of the special topics studied.

Benefiting the community, while educating students, is the aim of the Future Homemakers Club. Mrs. Leona Dunn, club advisor, supervised the collection of candy and toys for the Saint Francis Orphanage and the distribution of Christmas corsages to patients at the Cumberland Sanitarium.

Officers of the senior group were Muriel Travers, president; Beverly Morris, vice-president; Nancy LaFleur, secretary; and Patricia Flamand, treasurer. Leaders of the freshman club were Helen Rogala, president; Joanna Winiarski, vice-president; Eileen Angell, secretary; and Grace Departhy, treasurer.

Preparing its members to meet the standards of the business world is the purpose of the Future Business Leaders of America Club. Membership in the club expanded so greatly this year that the group was divided into two sections. The senior group was directed by Mrs. Rita Mellor, while Miss Ernestine Burke guided the junior group.

Seniors visited the office of an industrial plant, and toured Bryant College while juniors viewed the operations of the Telephone Company. Bulletin boards were displayed by both groups. The senior division officers were Christen McKee, president; Claire Departhy, vice-president; Carol Laliberte, secretary; and Margaret Oxley, treasurer.

COMMUNITY PROJECT of the Homemaking Club was the sewing of blankets to be used by the town rescue squad. Busy young homemakers are Joanna Winiarski, Grace Departhy, Betty Afonso, and Helen Rogala.

NIMBLE FINGERS AND AN ALERT MIND, are a necessity for a proficient typist. Freshmen students familiarize themselves in the workings of a typewriter.

FUTURE BUSINESS LEADERS of America display one of their projects that attractively decorate the bulletin boards of the business wing. Exhibiting the finished product are Christine McKee, Margaret Oxley, Claire Departhy, and Carolyn Laliberte.

Three active clubs give experience in language study

JUNIOR ALLIANCE FRANÇAISE, a nationwide organization, endeavors to promote French culture in the United States. Playing host to the Rhode Island Chapter in November were French Club members Suzanne Bouchard, Patricia Piepszna, Linda Hoffmann, Kathy Conway, Sandra Cardono, Claire Marie Forcier, Christine Stuczyk, Evelyn Horstman, and Joyce Alix.

Opportunities to converse freely in the French language are provided to students in the French Club. Club members are introduced to French culture and geography. A form of French bingo, tongue-twisters, and songs are a few of the various exercises performed at the weekly meetings to increase fluency in the language. One year of French is the only requirement for membership in the club.

Guided by Mrs. Adrienne Lavallee, a dance was sponsored to help finance a trip to the New York World's Fair. In charge of this year's affairs were Kathleen Conway, president; Evelyn Horstman, vice-president; Sandra Cardono, secretary; and Claire-Marie Forcier, treasurer.

Under the supervision of Mr. Anthony Vernaglia, members of the Latin Club explored ancient Roman life and culture. A great deal of information pertaining to antiquity was uncovered in the adequate facilities of the school library. Miss Mary Maguire, the head librarian, and Miss Rosemary Ball, assistant librarian, assisted in this major project by helping members to locate valuable material for their research into the customs of the early Romans. Latin cartoons and jokes, drawn by artist Kevin Mojikut and illustrating Latin life were exhibited in a display case as a club project.

Plans were made to accompany the members of the Spanish Club on a trip to the New York World's Fair in the spring. Activities and projects of the Latin Club were handled by its officers, Sharon Marszalkowski, president; Stephanie Karas, secretary; and Michael Coleman, treasurer.

"LOOK! UP IN THE SKY! IT'S A BIRD, IT'S A PLANE, IT'S SUPERMAN!" Sharon Marszalkowski, Stephanie Karas, and Michael Coleman draw cartoons in Latin Club.

EL TORO! Traditional Spanish matador costume is worn by John Martin. Other members of the Spanish Club, John McGinnes, Anthony Miguel, Bruce Clark, and Richard Bell, stand proudly before the display they arranged.

On Mondays, room 213 was the gathering place for Spanish students who took more than a passive interest in their adopted language. The purpose of the Spanish Club is to supplement classroom work and to provide an opportunity for students to converse in Spanish.

To comply with these aims, Miss Margaret Amaral outlined a program which included Spanish records, films, and games and also slides of Spain. One of the highlights of the year was the joint trip taken with the Latin Club to the New York World's Fair.

SENIORS of the Varsity Club receive letters for outstanding scholastic and athletic achievement. Janice Wnek (at right) pins a letter on Peter Louthis as Sandra Cardono and Linda Read watch the operation.

MASTERMINDS of the chessboard, Donald Fleury and James Tierney, match their skill in an engrossing game. Matthew Bard, Frank Lind, and David King observe the crucial maneuvers.

Varied personalities are reflected by choice of clubs

Outstanding scholars and athletes comprise the Varsity Club. Senior members of the club who have excelled academically are awarded letters.

Mrs. Joyce Walsh, Mr. Edward Hogan, Mr. Richard Lynch, and Mr. Joseph Dragon are the faculty advisors to the club. Student representatives of the Varsity Club are Janice Knek, Linda Read, Peter Louthis, and Warren Procter.

This year the Varsity Club sponsored the annual Homecoming Dance in honor of Lucille Raiche, the Homecoming Queen, and held a banquet honoring its senior members.

Our Art Club is composed of two groups which work closely with one another to create the colorful posters that advertise the various school activities.

Heading the Underclassman Art Club are Carol Thomson, president; Diane Ferreira, vice-president; Grace Departhy, secretary; Linda Paquette, treasurer; and Amy Dillenbeck, program chairman.

The officers of the Senior Club are Nancy Whalen, president; Maureen Hinds, vice-president; Susan Jencks, secretary; Donna McIntosh, treasurer; and Nancy McIntyre, program chairman.

Under the supervision of Miss Irene Geddes, the Art Clubs have taken many field trips to art shows. The club members viewed the Blackstone Valley Artists Show, the Slater Mill Art Show, and the Woonsocket Art Show. At these shows the students observed many prints and paintings.

Interest in chess was so great this year that it was necessary to form two Chess Clubs, one advised by Mr. Richard Ponton and the other by Mr. Richard Duval. To teach chess strategy the opaque projector has been employed.

POTTER'S WHEEL AND KILN offer students in Art Club the challenging field of ceramics in which to work. Grace Departhy and Carol Thompson examine finished pottery displayed by Susan Jencks and Sheila Smith. William McKenna is at the potter's wheel.

Books and audio-visual aids, materials for these clubs

MEMBERS of the Audio-Visual Club get an early start in delivering their equipment. Boys making their rounds are Lloyd Oliver, James Searles, John Scully, and Allan Grant.

APPRECIATION of good literature is the aim of the Reading for Pleasure Club. Selecting books for future enjoyment are Justine Banek, Martha Meikle, Bruce Clark, and Thomas Lewis.

SHELVING is one of the never-ending tasks performed by library aides, such as Ann Cyr, Theresa Kulik, Claudette Allard, Kathy Dunham, Emily Teasdale, Connie Drainville.

One of the most helpful organizations in the school is the Audio-Visual Club, moderated by Mrs. Christina Cassidy. The boys in this club aid the teachers in the setting up of screens, projectors, tape recorders, and phonographs.

Many boys are of further assistance. Before and after school, as well as during their free periods, they make transparencies and tapes. Every member of the club is trained to make repairs on all the machines in the audio-visual department.

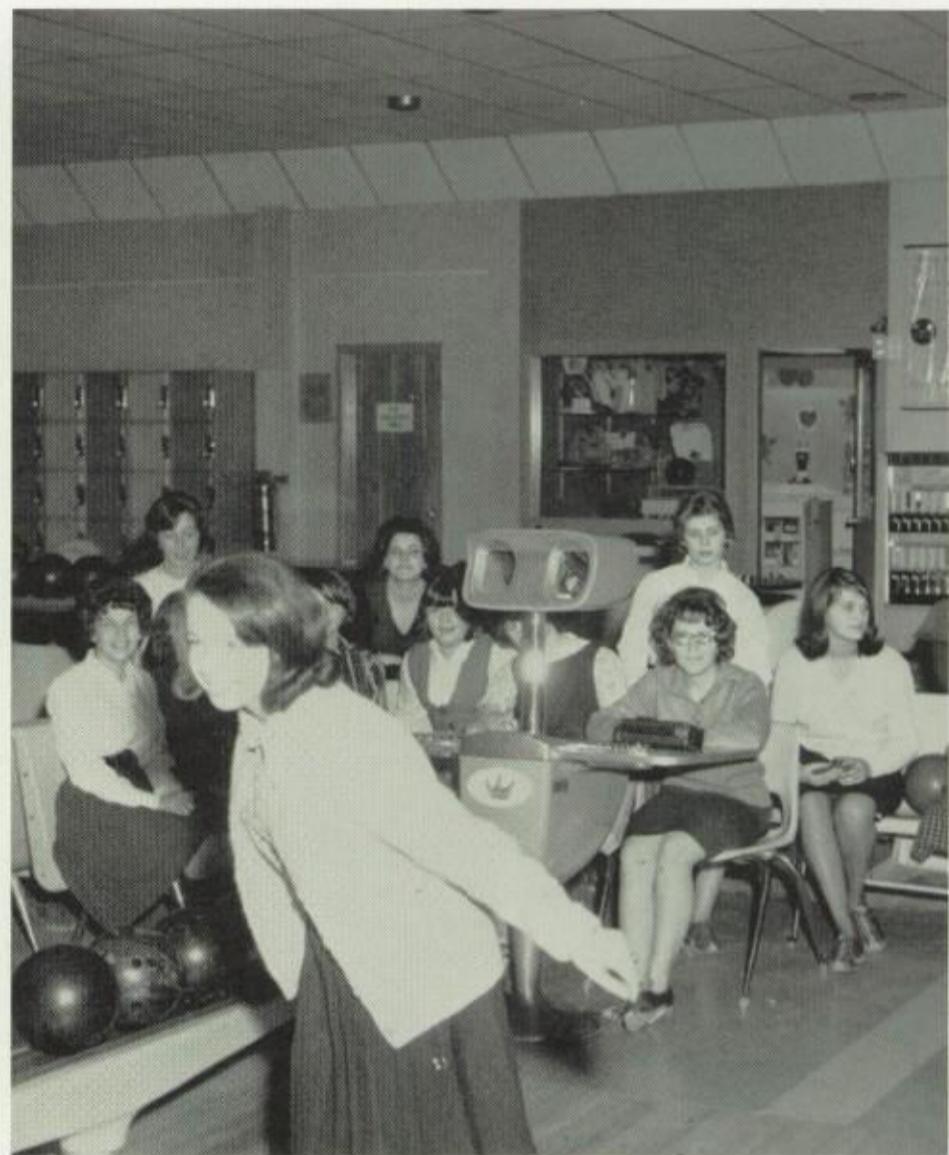

New Library Club members were instructed on library procedure through the use of film strips by the librarian, Miss Mary Maguire. Over a hundred Library Aides helped in clerical operations, shelving books, arranging displays, and managing the circulation desk. In this way members of the Library Club are offered an opportunity to attain a better understanding of a librarian's work.

To help defer the expenses of their annual trip to New York, the Library Club sponsored a dance.

"Contrast poverty and plenty in the world today by reading The Other America and The Status Seekers." This was a typical assignment given to the Reading for Pleasure Club by Mr. John Gorman. This small but lively club has made a comparative study of many examples of modern fiction and nonfiction.

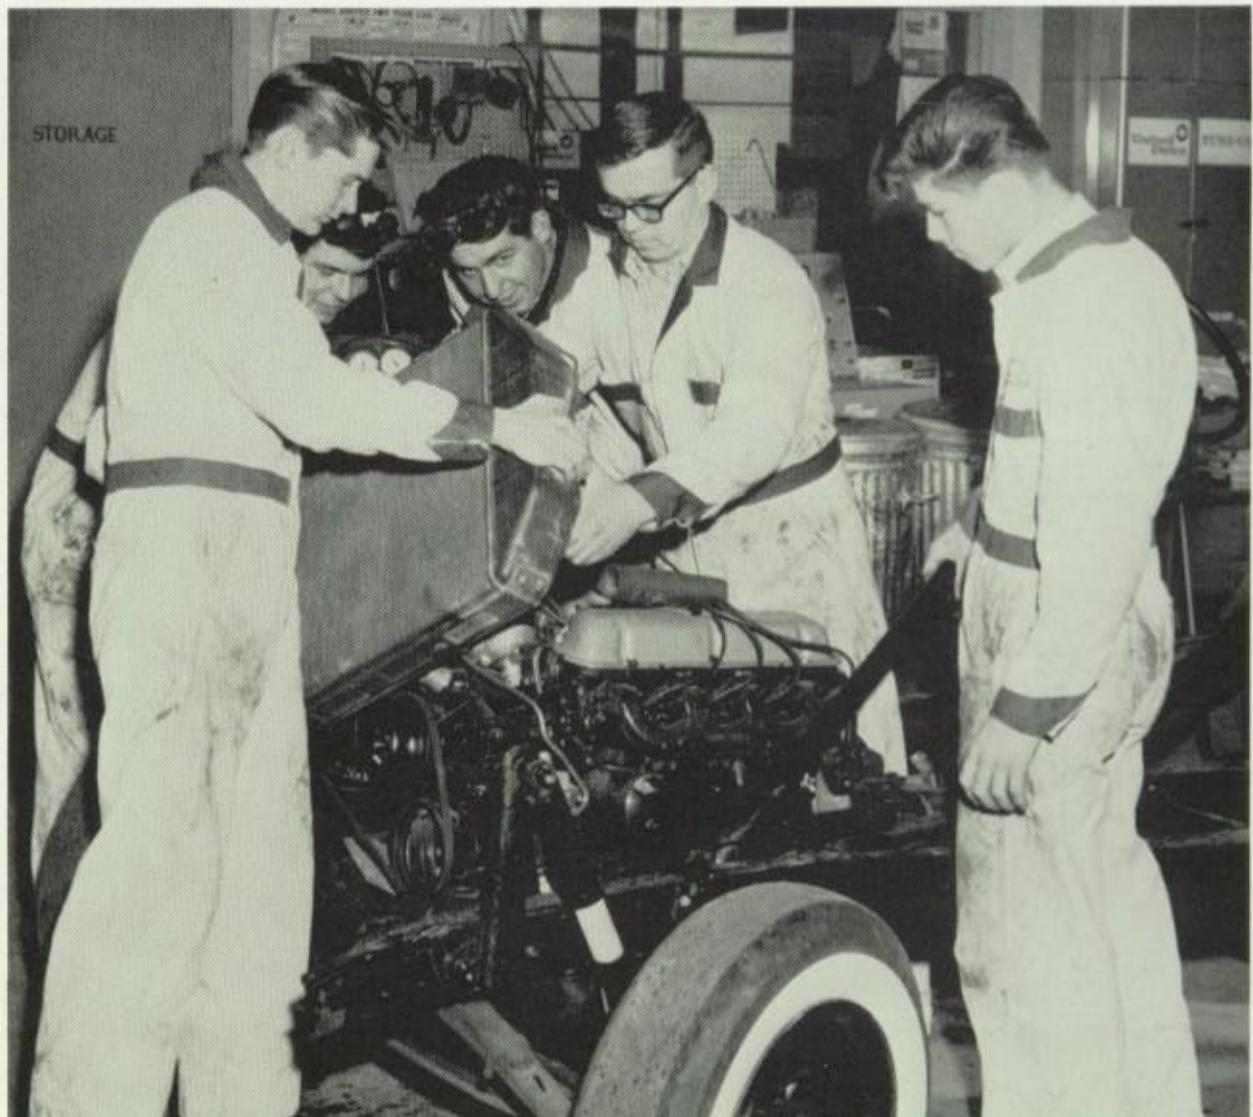

BOWLING provides hours of after school enjoyment. Bowling here are Ellis Titmas and Steven English.

WHOLESOME FUN and good exercise are experienced by participants in the Bowling Club. This sport is favored by girls like Carole Bernard, shown bowling here.

Diverse clubs develop occupational and athletic skills

INSTALLING a new engine donated by the Ford Motor Company are boys in the Auto Club. These JETS are Brian Dawson, Frederick Boyd, Gerard Houle, Frank King, and Michael Malouin.

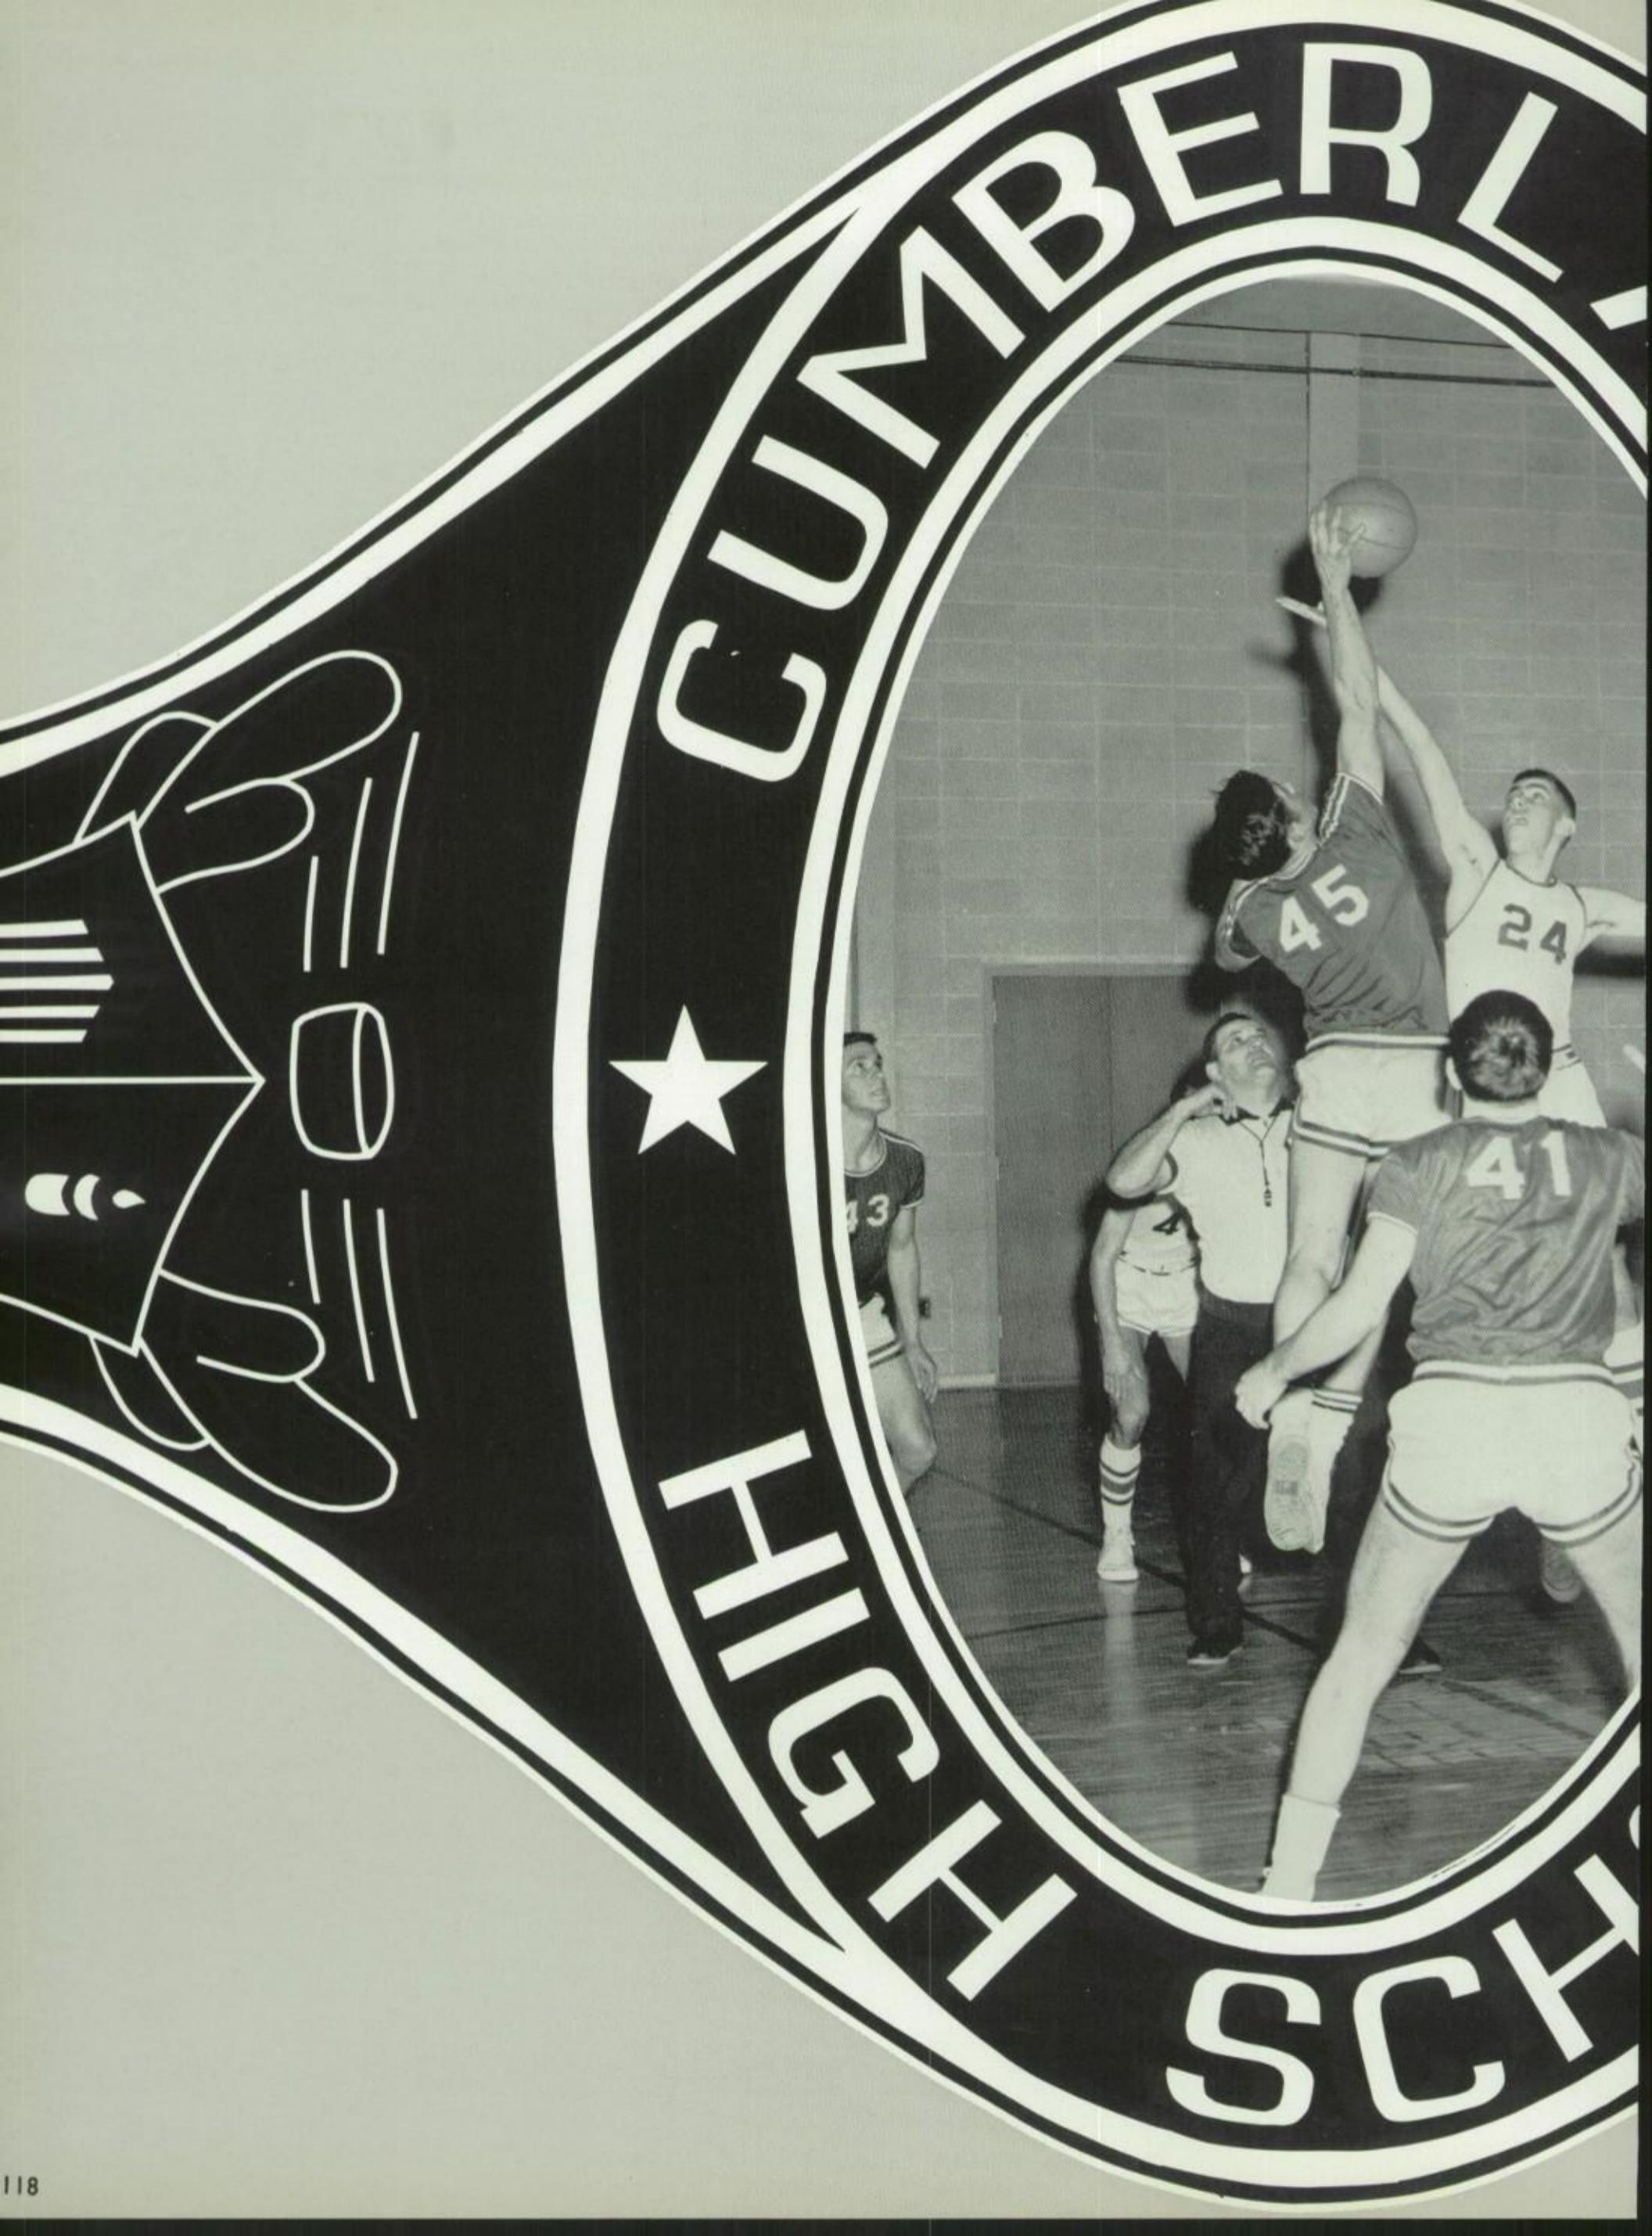

Enthusiasts of ten-pin bowling make the bowling club a popular and fast-growing activity. The Girls' Bowling Team, which is coached by Mrs. Norma Brusko, meets every Wednesday at the Walnut Hill Bowl. Mr. Anthony Chrostek is the advisor to the Boy's Bowling Team, which also meets at Walnut Hill. Members of both teams benefit from and enjoy this activity.

For those truly motor-minded boys who wish to delve into the more technical aspects of automotives not covered in classes, Mr. Louis Chenot heads the Automotive Club. Aiding Mr. Chenot in the administrative duties of the club are Frederick Boyd, president; Gerard Houle, vice-president; and Francis King, treasurer.

The major project for this year was the customizing of a 1940 pickup truck, using a 1964 Ford engine, which was donated to the school by the Ford Motor Company.

However, the members of the club did not confine themselves to this special project. They have done a great deal of work in modernizing and customizing their own cars, as well as repairing the cars of faculty members and other students.

HIGH SCHOOL

SPORTS LIFE

"A sound mind in a sound body for every student" is the goal of a Cumberland High School education. Adequate gym facilities provide ample opportunity for all to keep physically fit. The more skilled display their talents as Freshman, Junior Varsity, or Varsity athletics on one or more of the various sports teams. The games in which these boys give their all serve a dual function. In addition to demanding a constant display of good sportsmanship, they establish stiff competition between local schools, fashioning the backbone of our school spirit.

SUMMIT CONFERENCE is held on the sidelines among coaches Richard Lynch and Peter Dalpe, and quarterback Gerry Gosselin. Superior strategy is needed to outwit the opponent.

Varsity football was a big attraction this year at Cumberland High. Moving into Class B competition for the first time, the Clippers watchfully began their 1964 season. Fine coaching on the part of head coach, Mr. Richard Lynch, and assistant coach, Mr. Peter Dalpe, was rewarded by the numerous wins and excellent showings by the team. Lacking in size and experience, the Cumberland line displayed their outstanding play on the grid. Helped by the veterans in the backfield, the Clippers made an impressive showing in the Eastern Division.

Throughout the entire season the Clippers retained their potency, both defensively and offensively. Offensive spark, quarterback Jerry Gosselin ignited the team with his thrilling pass plays. Aided by his favorite targets, John Copeland and Arthur Johnson, Jerry broke the standing record for the most touchdown passes thrown in one season.

Outstanding performers of the backfield were Pete Louthis, Bill Free, halfbacks and fullback Warren Procter. Cumberland High's badly needed place kicker was found when Dick Sutcliffe, second string quarterback, developed his kicking potential.

WINNING CLIPPER STYLE is shown as Gerry Gosselin (5) prepares to throw another successful pass. Fine blocking is displayed by Billy Free (22).

Pre-league wins over Johnston, Warren, and Middletown, raised the gridders' hopes of a successful season. In the first league game, the Cumberland new comers suffered a defeat of 20-0 by the Classical veterans. But the varsity team, determined not to be outclassed, came back with three impressive victories. The clash between St. Raphael and Cumberland ended in disaster for the Clippers. Saints, taking advantage of the breaks of the game, won 13-7.

Going on to defeat Central 14-7, the Clippers were ready to force the heavy favorite Woonsocket, undefeated for two seasons. A Cumberland touchdown pass was set up by a long run by Mike O'Connor. But the mighty Woonsocket edged the Clippers 12-6 in a Thanksgiving Day thriller. Cumberland placed fourth in the Eastern Division, Class B, with a league record of 3 wins and 3 losses.

J.V. Football Team proves as able as predecessors

Our Junior Varsity team showed that its quality and skill were equal to that of the varsity as they compiled a creditable 5-2 record. The Clippers successful season was due to the able coaching of Mr. Peter Dalpe and the outstanding initiative of the gridders.

After the two defeats by Woonsocket and Bishop Feehan, the team went on to make four of their five wins shut-outs. With these strong showings, the Junior Varsity squad will develop into a tough competitor in the coming years.

In the J.V. competition, the players learn from experience what will be expected of them when they become members of the Varsity team. Among the players who have shown their ability and determination this year are quarterback Dick Sutcliffe, full-back Glenn McCusker, halfback Bill Smalley, and linemen Dennis Bernardo, Al LaPorte, and Charles Heald.

SELECTED TO CARRY THE BALL is junior varsity fullback, Glenn McCusker in foreground. Quarterback Dick Sutcliffe makes the handoff.

Enthusiasm shown by this year's freshman football team has been nothing short of remarkable. When the coach, Mr. Austin O'Toole, called for try-outs early in September, over sixty boys turned out. After grueling practice sessions, thirty stalwarts remained. They went on to compile a record of four wins and three losses. Notable victories were made against Goff, Seekonk, Johnston, and Bishop Feehan.

One of the three losses was a "heart-breaker." The Clippers were edged out 7 to 6 by Woonsocket. Although they lost the game to Woonsocket, the freshmen have good reason to be proud. In their first encounter, Woonsocket held the Clippers scoreless and clinched an easy 20 to 0 victory. The marked improvement shown in the second game with Woonsocket is a fine tribute to team spirit and determination. Through their fine performances, the members of the team have brought honor to Cumberland.

Giving the freshmen a chance to compete against other schools benefits both the players and the varsity team. Clipper frosh develop necessary skills early. Weak points are detected, analyzed, and corrected. Competition is keen and each team member has one goal—to one day make the varsity. The FRESHMEN execute a fine play. Quarterback Roger Dowdell (9) holds his own while teammates restrain the opposition.

Successful freshman gridders score many victories

"friendly rivalry" among the players is what gives a team the needed winning spirit. Each player is acutely aware that if he does not give his best, someone else will take his place.

The high calibre of sportsmanship and fair play shown by the freshman team will give rise to future successful varsity teams. The early development of good habits is a primary factor in the designing of a championship team.

Cross country runners increase the pace this year

In their second year of league competition, the Clipper Cross-Country team outdid its predecessors by two wins. The team, coached by Mr. Harris Gederman, compiled a league record of three wins and five losses. Besides the league races, Cumberland competed in the Memorial Day Race, Class B Finals, and the Rhode Island State Meet. The Clippers placed well in all. Also, in celebration of the beginning of the Olympic games, C.H.S. runners carried a torch for a distance of ten miles through Cumberland.

A valuable addition to this year's team was sophomore Richard McLaughlin. His fine running enabled him to become one of the ablest harriers for C.H.S. It is hoped that Richard will continue his outstanding performance in the future years. Other outstanding runners were Donald McCauley, Charles White, Garvin Morris, Richard Tierney, and Eugene Potrzeba. Mr. Gederman has high hopes for next year as he will have an experienced and well-trained team.

SETTING STRIDE at the beginning of a race is necessary to preserve strength and energy for that final spurt over the finish line. Employing this running strategy is Garvin Morris, followed closely by Michael Powers.

PREPARING FOR A BIG RACE, Clipper runners assemble to pin on their numbers. Participants in the Rhode Island State Meet are Garvin Morris, David King, Charles White, Michael Powers, Richard McLaughlin, James Tierney, and Eugene Potrzeba.

RACING DOWN the slope are Judith Jencks, Donna Kushnir, Susan Jencks, and Elizabeth Howes, all senior members of the ski team.

SKI INSTRUCTOR, Mr. Burroughs, gives invaluable skiing tips to the Cumberland High School ski team. Benefiting from his advice are Garvin Morris, and Tom Egan.

Clipper skiers win acclaim in New England competition

For the past two years the Cumberland High School ski team has been competing on the varsity level. Practicing on Monday and Wednesday evenings at Diamond Hill, the Clipper skiers have been developing their skills under the able direction of Mr. John Burroughs. His wife, Jan Burroughs, has also been of immeasurable aid.

Although the girls did not compete regularly, they did join the boys in a ski meet at Diamond Hill against Wellesley, a Massachusetts high school team. Our boys proved victorious, but the girls were defeated by the girls from Wellesley.

Cumberland skiers made themselves known throughout New England through their fine tournament performances. Competing in the New England Tournament, they faced nine teams, three each from Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. Overall, Cumberland came in ninth. Garvin Morris, competing in the Rhode Island Tournament, captured the championship for the men's division. Susan Arnold, a Cumberland freshman, tied for first place in the junior girls' division.

If the present trend continues, skiing will soon be a major sport in Cumberland's athletic program. This year's success was certainly a major step in that direction. An indication of our expanding skiing program was the increase in interscholastic competition.

FORM AND STYLE are extremely important to a good skier. Walter Rymanski crouches as he comes to the end of his run down the slope.

CROSSED ARMS mark the spot where Gregory Lukasiewicz and Cezar Ferreira wish the ball was. Unfortunately a Central Falls player has grabbed it.

GOING UP HIGH, George Aragao pulls down a valuable rebound. Michael McKee and Cezar Ferreira are ready to start the fast-break.

Drive and determination are major factors in team play

CUMBERLAND'S DEFENSE is prepared to offset the Warriors' scoring attack, Paul Alves and Cezar Ferreira play backcourt while Greg Lukas-iewicz, George Aragao, and Michael McKee comprise the frontcourt.

ONLY RETURNING seniors on the sophomore-studded varsity squad were tri-captains Gregory Lukasiewicz, George Aragao, and Tony Sousa. In second row are Coach Joseph Dragon, Michael McKee, David Stanlewicz, John Krawiec, Cezar Ferreira, William Jackson, John Stefanik, Albert Ereio, Paul Alves, and Norbert Charette.

Sophomores help to strengthen our varsity team

AGGRESSIVE REBOUNDING gives the Clippers possession of the ball for another attempt at two points. George Aragao has command of the situation while Clippers Gregory Lukasiewicz and Michael McKee assist.

It does not matter if you win or lose, only how you play the game. This is a fundamental rule of good sportsmanship, and it may well have been the motto for this year's Clipper team. Unfortunately, the Clippers had only three varsity veteran players returning from last year's season. Coach Joseph Dragon was faced with the difficult task of rebuilding a new team. Drawing on his resources from last year's freshman team, Coach Dragon chose three sophomores to face the awkward jump from the freshman league to tough varsity competition.

Although the losses outweighed the wins, the Cumberland hoopsters never failed to put forth their best effort against the challenging teams. Because of tough competition from the opposing squads, the Clippers compiled an overall record of 3 wins and 19 losses.

The main spark in the Clipper team was a sophomore standout, Paul Alves. Paul pleased the crowd with his fine ball-handling and excellent shooting. Strong all-around support was given by senior Gregory Lukasiewicz and sophomore Cezar Ferreira. "Shorty" Aragao, a 6'1" senior, added to the scoring column by fine offensive plays under the boards. Another adept sophomore, "Spider" McKee, had a dead eye from the corner. This year the team members elected as tri-captains George Aragao, Gregory Lukasiewicz, and Anthony Sousa.

ACTION INTENSIFIES under the boards. John Krawiec is flanked by enemy Warriors while John Stefanik (22) rushes to the rescue.

Cumberland High's junior varsity basketball team proved to be a tough competitor in this season's Class B competition. Coached by Mr. Richard Lynch, the team compiled a league record of 10 wins and 10 losses with a 65 to 65 tie against North Providence. Although the squad ran into some tough teams, they never failed to give their best effort in each game.

Many things contributed to the J.V.'s successful season. Fine ball handling and all-around good shooting ability was shown on the part of Albert Ereio. In addition John Gomes, Ray Larabee, and John Stefanik also proved to be able back court men. Rounding out the squad, strong support was given by Mike Dufort and John Krawiec in their excellent play under the boards.

HANDS GRASP for the ball as Cumberland and Jencks fight for possession. With the aid of Paul Sweetman (20), and Robert Passano (54), the Clippers control the play.

Stamina, endurance, and hard work led to the admirable record for the freshman basketball team. Their winning record of 19 wins and 4 losses capped a brilliant drive. Game after game the team gave a fine performance. No small part of their success was due to the fine coaching of Mr. John DeGoes. Two of the games the freshmen lost were close games—a “four point” loss to Brennan, a team Cumberland had defeated earlier in the campaign, and a “three point” loss to Goff.

The many hard hours spent practicing after school dispelled the theory that sports are all glory. The freshman team learned that glory has a high price. When the team actually was on the basketball court in competition with other schools, its mettle was proved. The court acted as a proving ground—a culmination of hours of hard work. The Clipper Frosh have emerged victorious; they have shown that they have what it takes.

Varsity cheerleaders excel in precision and volume

ENTHUSIASTIC CHEERING spurs the varsity squad on to greater efforts. Cheerleaders are the most energetic Clipper supporters.

What football or basketball game would be complete without the varsity cheerleaders enthusiastically cheering their team forward? Being a cheerleader requires responsibility. A cheerleader must exhibit good manners, sportsmanship, and courtesy at all times.

Try-outs for a position on the squad are held at the end of each school year. The judges rate each candidate on the basis of poise, voice, co-ordination, appearance, and jump. Competition among the girls grows keener each year. After the trials are over, the newly chosen cheerleaders are fitted for the traditional "sailor uniforms," which are designed to complement Cumberland High's nickname, the Clippers.

Much practice is necessary to achieve co-ordination and volume, which are basic requirements to form a well-precisioned squad. The varsity cheerleaders devote long hours of practice to attain this excellence. The girls use their ingenuity to create new ideas, cheers, and approaches, which will top the performance given by the squads of various other schools during the season.

At the games the cheerleaders provide entertainment for the spectators and, at the same time, help boost the morale of the team. When the cheering squad gives the yell, "Give me a C," you know that they are contributing their best for C.H.S.

Lorraine Cadoret, Susan Straight, Jane Smith, Margaret Campopiano, and Susan Wall.

J.V. and freshman cheerleaders add spirit to teams

In addition to the varsity cheering squad, there are also the junior varsity and freshman squads. All three groups are under the guidance of Mrs. Norma Brusko, the physical education instructor. Following the example set by the varsity cheerleaders, the underclassman squads work to execute their cheers with precision and volume. Each of these teams shows great promise for an excellent varsity team in the coming years.

The J.V.'s are attired in outfits, similar to the varsity's, differing only in the type of C on the front of the uniform. Only sophomores and juniors are eligible for a position on this squad. Whether the team wins or loses, these dedicated girls cheer enthusiastically and perform their cheers with vigor.

The freshman team is composed of girls from the Freshman Class. Each cheerleader wears a vest and skirt combination with a square shaped C to complement the uniform. At the freshman games, the lively cheerleaders provide constant school spirit and initiative for a winning team.

Cumberland hockey team even in defeat shows progress

CAPTAIN Paul Boucher breaks up a scoring attempt by the Hope offense. Robert Rowey, Walter Rymanski, and goalie David Bullard back up the play.

Hockey, an up and coming sport at Cumberland High, is a fast, rough team game. The sport requires a six-man squad, who propel a hard rubber disk called a puck with specially designed curved sticks. The duty of the goal-keeper is to defend the goal and to give directions to his teammates. To keep the game going at a constantly fast pace, speedy skating and hard checking are necessary.

The players wear knee length pants, long stockings, sweaters, and heavy protective pads. The padding of hockey players is similar to that of football players but instead of cleats they wear skates.

SPEEDING PAST THE OPPONENT, Walter Rymanski takes advantage of a clear shot on the goal.

SWIFT SKATING Paul Coletta moves the puck out from behind the cage against the alert Hope defense.

A gifted hockey player, Mr. Larry Kish, became a member of the Cumberland faculty and took over the duties as head coach. This year, Mr. Kish has built a strictly disciplined team. Because of the difficulty of obtaining ice for practice, the boys were compelled to drill at odd hours. In spite of a disappointing league record, the Cumberland Clipper skaters showed aggressive play and tight defense in all of their games. The Clippers progressed in every encounter and made marked improvement at the end of the season. But even in defeat, the players displayed good sportsmanship, which made them respected in the league.

Next year's team will feel the effect of graduation. Senior members included Captain Paul Boucher; assistant captains, Walter Rymanski and Robert Rowey; forwards, William Karolyshyn and Raymond Carpenter; and defensemen Raymond Kuzdeba and Donald Cote. Next year's coach will have to build a new team around three forwards, David Moriarty, Paul Coletta, and David Ferreira; and two goalies, David Bullard and James Costigan.

Intramurals sharpen accuracy for future competition

Boys who enjoyed participating in sports found that the Boys' Intramurals Club was just made for them. The advisors of the group were Mr. Chrostek and Mr. Booth, boys' physical education instructors. After school hours, the boys engaged in touch football and basketball. Because of the large number of participants, the club was divided into several teams. The teams played against each other in a regular intramural league. Championship games provided thrills for all. The games themselves were refereed by qualified students.

In this age of automation, it is imperative that we use our leisure time wisely. The Boys' Intramurals Club was a prime example of making effective, beneficial use of leisure time. The boys developed physical strength and quick reflexes.

INTRAMURALS PROVIDE good wholesome fun for after school hours. Richard Souza dribbles low in an attempt to side-step the guarding of John Janusz.

Advised by our new physical education instructor, Mrs. Norma Brusko, the Girls' Intramurals Club provided various athletic activities for sports-minded girls. Sportsmanship and fair play were emphasized as girls competed against each other in volleyball, basketball, and softball.

Although the club was in its formative stages, plans were made to widen the scope of activities. The club plans to initiate a girls' field hockey team in the fall. The intramural activities were designed to develop physical fitness and mental alertness. Girls found athletics a way to stay slim.

GIRLS BASKETBALL competition provides vigorous exercise for Cumberland's female athletes. Participating in this scrimmage are Christine McGinn, Susan Moore, Andree Valois, Judee McCafferty, Evelyn Alger, Claire Carnaghan, Mary Pritchard, and physical education instructor, Mrs. Norma Brusko.

PARALLEL BARS provide an exhibition ground for the precision and style of Dennis Gregory. Safety precautions are maintained by Ralph Barlow.

ENDURANCE AND AGILITY necessary to perform consecutive knee circles are exhibited by Bruce Newman.

WORKING ON THE RINGS, Rock Allard develops muscular co-ordination and form while Michael Marcil and Raymond LaPlant spot.

Gymnasts concentrate on developing style and form

Parallel bars, trampoline, and horse have been used extensively this year. Even while intramural games were going on, gym show enthusiasts remained undaunted. They set up their equipment on the side lines and practiced their stunts. Tips for improvement and other highly valued advice were given by the advisors, Mr. Chrostek, Mr. Booth, and Mrs. Brusko, all physical education instructors at Cumberland High School.

POPULAR piece of apparatus is the trampoline. Susan Moore practices for the upcoming Gym Show.

Students were given every available opportunity to develop their skills. While all the apparatus was set up on the gym floor, students were allowed to practice on anything they chose. The more skilled gymnasts aided the beginners by teaching them the skills they had already mastered. Often this type of aid was extremely beneficial to the learner. It inspired him to try harder and also made practices more enjoyable. A feeling of harmony pervaded the atmosphere as the gymnasts anticipated the big day—the annual gym show.

The girls concentrated on various vaults, such as straddle, face, reverse and wolf vaults, and on performing stunts on the trampoline. The boys performed on the parallel bars, which require a sustained muscular strength and endurance. They also developed a high degree of proficiency on both the horse and trampoline.

VAULTS on the horse are performed by Susan Blezard with Mrs. Norma Brusko checking her style.

Epilogue

Our student days at Cumberland High School are over, but the knowledge, the friendships, the memories will remain. These past four years have provided a foundation on which to build our lives. The strength of that foundation will evince itself many times in the years ahead.

A significant token of remembrance of our high school years is our class ring. Reflected in the clear blue stone are the toil and the recreation, the joy and the sadness, the glory of victory and the agony of defeat which were "our days" at Cumberland.
